MacArthur's Men Fight for Air Fields on Biak Isle

GREEN VISIONS RE-DISCOVERY OF U.S. BY F.D.R.

Bricker and Dewey Tell Views.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hershey, Pa., May 28.—Strong nationalism, the principles of the Mackinac G. O. P. charter, and no relinquishment of American sovereignty in any post-war program for preserving peace formed the prevading idea among midwest Republican governors arriving today for the 36th annual governors' conference. Sentiment among early arrivals is that a nationalist plank must be in the G. O. P. national platform if the party is to win.

Gov. Green.

Gov. Green of Illinois, chief author of the Illinois Republican state platform, which is regarded as expressing the voice of the midwest on post-war policy, made a prediction.

It was that President Roosevelt would rediscover America in his fourth term campaign and would go nationalistic as November approaches.

Bricker and Dewey Tell Views.

Governors Bricker of Ohio, and Dewey of New York, the two leading contenders for the Republican nomination for President, held separate press conferences.

Bricker, who arrived first, in amplifying his views of nationalism, declared all candidates, without mention of the New Yorker's name, should discuss all issues fully. Asked his position on Dewey's suggestion at Mackinac Island of a military alliance with England, Bricker said he was against any military alliances.

Bricker said he was against any international police force under the thumb of any super-government. He is for retention of Pacific island bases where necessary for American defense. He is for coöperation to save peace after the war.

The Ohio governor said he did not believe that any one would be nominated on the first ballot and that the convention will be deliberative.

Would Limit Tenure.

Bricker reiterated he is for constitutional amendment limiting the Presidency to one six-year term or two four-year terms. He said such a plank will be submitted at Chicago by a Mackinac subcommittee, of which he is member.

"I think any candidate going before the country at an hour like this, with the world on fire and liberty threatened, should discuss all issues vital to this country pertaining to the office he seeks," said Bricker.

"Does that apply to Dewey?" some one asked.

"Is he a candidate?" parried Bricker. He declared the President has not discussed all vital issues.

On foreign post-war relations Bricker said: "After the war I think we should take the leading part in the world in preserving peace as a sovereign nation. When it comes to an international police force to police the world, people who argue for this are dreaming.

"I am opposed to any military alliance commitments. America will

Strikers Vote to Return to Chrysler Jobs

Vote to Go Fishing

Longview, Wash., May 28—[Special].—Members of the International Woodworkers of America [CIO] tonight voted to "go fishing tomorrow" and skip work at the world's largest sawmills, the Weyerhauser and Longbell plants which employ 2,500 men. Their action probably will close both plants. This represents the largest single walkout in the series of strikes in the Pacific northwest lumber industry, in which, during the last week 30,000 or more idle men have defied a WLB order to return to work.

Detroit, Mich., May 28 (AP).—Striking employes of the Chrysler corporation's Highland Park plant voted at a meeting today to return to work.

William Jenkins, suspended president of local 490, CIO United Automobile Workers, said the first shift would return to their jobs tonight.

The strike, a flareup of a dispute which a week ago made 11,700 employes in seven Chrysler plants idle for eight days, started Friday night and kept 4,500 away from the Highland Park plant. The strikers said they were protesting the suspension of officers of the local by the UAW's international board.

Expect 16 to Be Rehired.

The men agreed to return to work, a spokesman said, with the understanding that UAW international officers would make an attempt to obtain reinstatement of 16 union members who were discharged. The 16 were accused of throwing three supervisory employes out of the plant and of stopping an AFL teamsters unionist from making soft drink deliveries at the plant.

Today's meeting was called by Jenkins following a statement by R. J. Thomas, UAW president, in which he said that "public opinion has become inflamed against our union." He warned the strikers that the union "cannot survive if the nation and our soldiers believe that we are obstructing the war effort."

Bakery Drivers Out.

It appeared unlikely that a war labor board return-to-work directive would end by tomorrow the strike of 1,000 wholesale bakery truck drivers. The four day strike, affecting 46 bakeries employing 4,000 workers, has left racks bare in many retail stores.

The strike at the Parke, Davis & Co. plant, which has made 1,900 employes idle since last Tuesday, remained deadlocked and chances of a settlement appeared unimproved. The strikers, members of the CIO United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers of America, are demanding wage increases, a union shop, and job classifications.

Four veterans of the Civil war gave the old soldier's salute to the advance guard of a new contingent of American heroes, discharged veterans of World War II., as Chicago turned out some 400,000 strong yesterday for the annual Memorial day parade on Michigan av.

Five survivors of the Grand Army of the Republic's once widespread membership had expected to take part in the parade, but one of the veterans was unable to do so. He was James Henry Lewis, 103, a Negro who enlisted at Vicksburg, and who was unable to leave his home at 4409 Federal st. even in an ambulance.

Ambrose Gives Salute

But for his absent comrades, Capt. Thomas Ambrose, the 95-year-old G. A. R. parade marshal, rose to salute every time the colors went by the reviewing stand at the Congress st. plaza. Seated in front of him were the other three Civil war veterans, James Crugon, 94, of 7229 Rogers av.; William Perry Lockwood, 97, of 4457 Magnolia av., and James Harvey, 99, a Negro of Rollins. Lockwood will go to Kankakee to ride in another Memorial day parade tomorrow.

30,000 Take Part in Parade.

Lt. Jasper said that 30,000 were in the parade and that 400,000 were spectators. Marching the two miles from Chicago av. to Roosevelt rd. were a military police battalion, army and navy bands, three reserve militia regiments, a long procession of veterans' posts and their affiliates, and a contingent of women war workers.

A hundred disabled veterans sat beside the reviewing stand and several hundred others, already discharged from World War II., marched in the parade.

Sen. Brooks, participating in one of the numerous grave decorating ceremonials in Chicagoland cemeteries, sounded the keynote that the nation, praying for and supporting its new generation of military heroes, must dedicate itself to the preservation of the nation's sovereignty. Speaking in Rosehill cemetery, Sen. Brooks said:

"This must be a day of dedication of our energies, our talents, and our resources to supply, support, and sustain our army, navy, marines, air corps, and our nurses as they drive and fight back the cruel forces of aggression. Every petty differ-

SERVICE MERGER BILL DUE TODAY

Senate to Get Plan for Post-War Setup.

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP).—Post-war consolidation of the army, navy, and air services under a single "secretary of the armed forces" was proposed tonight by Sen. Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip, in a bill he will introduce in the senate tomorrow.

Patterned after suggestions by Lt. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy army chief of staff, in testimony before a house special committee, the Hill measure also conforms with the ideas presented before the same committee by Harold D. Smith, director of the budget.

While Hill told a reporter he was acting entirely on his own responsibility as a member of the senate military committee, it seemed evident the measure has the tacit approval of the war department and other agencies, if not the navy.

Forrestal Opposed.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal recently opposed immediate consolidation of the military services in an appearance before the house group.

The Hill measure proposes creation of a new "department of armed forces" headed by a secretary chosen from civil life by the President and confirmed by the senate. The President also would be authorized to appoint civilian undersecretaries for the army, navy and for air at $10,000 annual salaries. Each would be given two assistants paid $8,000 yearly.

Chief of Staff Division.

The Alabama senator proposed also the creation of a division labeled "the United States chiefs of staff," consisting of officers of general or flag rank to be headed by one officer to be chief of staff to the President. This position would be analogous to that now occupied informally by Adm. William D. Leahy.

Britons of That 'Unfit' Town Say Yanks Are Fine Boys

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GRANTHAM, LINCOLNSHIRE, England, May 28.—This is the town in which it is "unfit" for women to walk unescorted, either by day or night, because of the improper behavior of the American troops. At least that is what W. D. Kendall, Independent member, told the house of commons Thursday, asking Home Secretary Morrison what steps he planned to take to protect girls of Grantham and other towns.

[Grantham is a city of about 20,000. Isaac Newton attended its grammar schools and Oliver Cromwell won his first military victory there.]

With this picture in mind, I was somewhat surprised on my arrival today, to find the streets thronged, with many girls walking hand in hand with American soldiers. Every one in Grantham has read what Kendall said, so all I had to do was introduce the subject, then listen.

Pretty Girl Speaks Up.

A pretty girl in a downtown cafe told me:

"We had an argument in our office and the workers decided that the girls are as bad as the fellows, which I think is true. I have some Americans living near me. They are all very nice. Of course, if you walk down the street they will call out, but won't follow you. I've never been bothered."

My blonde waitress asserted she was not afraid to be on the streets either day or night.

A woman clerk at the Angel hotel said, "We find the Americans very nice; we were agreeably surprised."

A teen-age girl sold me a rose and commented:

"If I could get my hands on Mr. Kendall I'd just about murder him."

"I always ask an American to take me home."

Kendall Wrong, Says Mayor.

Alfred Barnett, who runs a bakery shop and is mayor, said he believed Kendall was "very wrong."

The taxi driver who drove me to Kendall's house at the edge of town said, "The Americans are good—better than the English. It's more the fault of the women."

Kendall, who is a former resident of Philadelphia and is now the manager of a factory, said:

"We've got a hostel where we house 400 young factory girls. Conditions are horrible. I had to discharge one who was caught in bed with an American. The lanes and fields and school yards have been terrible also. We have found dozens and dozens of contraceptives all over the place.

"There also was the case of an American captain who offered a girl an engagement ring. Then, when she found herself pregnant and asked the American to marry her, he said, 'Maybe I had better get a divorce then.' The girl is now married to her English lad, and the captain, last I heard, was still married to his United States wife but engaged to a girl in London."

Kendall said that many girls less than 18 had come home drunk. He suggested that policewomen be hired to patrol the town district and that more recreational facilities be made available to the troops.

The pretty brunette housemaid at the Kendall place, when asked whether she was afraid to be on the streets by day or night, smiled and said that she was not.

Support for His Charges.

Canon Leo Arendzen, a Catholic leader, and Sister Sarah Willetts, a member of the Church of England's "Church Army," backed Kendall's charges, at least in part. Arendzen added that he thought that not all the blame should be given the Americans.

Sister Willetts said that her greatest worry was the fact that so many young girls were hugging and kissing American soldiers at dusk in doorways. She said, however, that only once had she found the girls unwilling participants.

She said that as far as she knew there was only one instance of pregnancy believed to involve an American soldier.

I visited the newspaper office and asked a young English matron if she were afraid to be on the streets by day or night. She replied, "There were the same sort of goings-on here before the Americans came. I'm not afraid. I usually have an American to protect me after dark."

Two Girls Blame Girls.

I stopped two attractive girls on the street and asked them. They said: "It's the fault of the girls. The fellows say hello and if you are just polite they do not bother you."

I returned to the Red Cross, where an older woman said, rather sharply, "It's a lot of ridiculous nonsense." A younger one said, "I've been stopped at night, but mostly by our own English troops." A G. I., sitting near-by broke in with, "The girls may stop you."

Push to Within 2½ Miles of One Jap Strip

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, May 29 [Monday]—(AP).—American 6th army invasion veterans have solidified their positions on Biak Island, 880 miles from the Philippines, and Mokmer air field is only two and one-half miles away, headquarters reported today.

Japanese resistance on the largest island in the Schouten group at the mouth of Geelvink bay was increasing as the Yanks fanned out from captured Bosnek in the southeast coast and pressed toward the airdrome, one of three on the island.

Sharpshooters' fire was taking a heavier toll of the invaders, who had light losses during the landing Saturday despite Japanese resistance. Only a few Americans were wounded and none killed in the original landings.

Planes Attack Fleet.

While the invaders fought on in a two-pronged offensive—one eastward from Bosnek, the other westward—12 enemy planes attacked the allied invasion fleet under command of Rear Adm. R. M. Fechteler, the afternoon of the invasion. His ships' anti-aircraft accounted for four Japanese bombers.

One of the plunging enemy planes made a suicide crash into an American sub chaser, causing nine casualties and some damage to the little craft.

Four Zeros Shot Down.

A Thunderbolt fighter plane shot down four Zeros and one bomber of an enemy air group attacking American ground troops.

Headquarters reports did not make clear immediately which of the airdromes was nearest the advancing troops, but presumably it was the Mokmer field, seven miles west of the original landing point. Mokmer is four miles west of Bosnek village, which was captured soon after the infantry men stormed ashore. The Sorido and Borokoe fields are west of Bosnek.

Japs Flee Into Caves.

The invaders driving toward Mokmer field made contact with the enemy at Parai, four and one-half miles from the original beachhead. The eastern prong was fighting at Soriari, about a mile and a half east of Bosnek.

Many Japanese troops, apparently surprised by the invading force, fled to caves around Bosnek and were being hunted down and killed. Two six-inch, four five-inch and two three-inch guns were captured in the Bosnek defenses.

Sharp fighting continued for the Maffin airdrome, mainland objective of other 6th army troops who rushed ashore there May 17 and conquered Wakde Island. The Wakde-Maffin bay area is 200 miles southeast of Biak. Ground forces were aided by naval guns.

Find Starved Japs.

After the naval bombardment of Japanese positions, the American infantry surged up Hill 225 and wrested it from the defenders. This commanding height, one mile southeast of the airstrip, gave the Yanks an artillery position.

In the Hollandia area, 110 miles down the coast, starvation and jungle privations continued to take a heavy toll of the Japanese. Large numbers of enemy dead and dying were reported by patrols and natives. In the 200 miles between Hollandia and by-passed Wewak to the southeast, an additional 453 enemy dead have been counted.

"Our operations in the Wakde-Sarmi area jeopardize the only possible escape routes," today's bulletin said. "Realization of their fate has apparently broken the enemy's morale and his forces are beginning to disintegrate into straggling groups seeking only food and escape."

SMASH TOWARD CAPITAL ALONG COAST SECTOR

ALLIED HDQ., Naples, Italy, May 28 (AP).—Allied troops smashed toward Rome along coastal routes from the Anzio beachhead area tonight in a new offensive against weakening opposition. The main 5th and 8th armies heightened the prospects of disaster for at least eight German divisions by capturing Artena, Ceprano, and Belmonte, and blanketing the Via Casilina with heavy artillery fire.

This afternoon American tanks and infantry pushed beyond Artena toward Valmontone and the Via Casilina [highway No. 6], which is the only practicable German escape route. Enemy artillery fire was heavy.

Self-propelled German guns smashed into Artena's buildings and machine-gun fire raked the sloping meadows down which American troops and tanks pushed northward towards the Via Casilina, two miles distant.

Nazis Add New Division.

The Germans, acutely aware of their peril and with 17 divisions already committed to the fighting south and southeast of Rome, flung an 18th division into the desperate struggle to keep the Via Casilina open.

This was the battle wearied Hermann Goering division, which allied headquarters said had been reorganizing in a rest area near Florence. It was rushed into the line near Valmontone, 21 miles southeast of Rome.

Exact locations of the advances in that area were not made known, but Daniel de Luce, Associated Press correspondent on the scene, said that at noon he saw 1,200 American artillery shells poured into Lanuvio, just south of Lake Albano and four miles west of embattled Velletri.

[German positions ranging from 17 to 21 miles southeast of Rome on a fan shaped front were under attack. These were at Lanuvio, 17 miles from Rome; Velletri, to the east, 18 miles, and Valmontone, 21 miles. Artena, in allied hands, is on the Valmontone-Velletri highway, 22 miles from Rome.]

Long Allied Arm Flexes.

De Luce said the Germans withdrew Saturday night to the Rome side of the Anzio-Albano road, where brush filled ravines gave them better defensive terrain.

The entire battlefront was in the shape of a long arm extending up from newly captured Belmonte, six miles north of Cassino, thru the newly taken towns of Ceprano, Villa San Stefano, and Norma, with two American fingers reaching northward on both sides of the Alban hills towards Valmontone on the east and Albano on the west.

These American thrusts, De Luce said, put the Germans in obvious danger of having their defensive ring around the rugged Colli Laziali smashed apart, leaving Velletri and Valmontone dangling and disconnected.

Face Toughest Defense.

The Germans were making their toughest defense at Velletri and around Valmontone, but American artillery fire plunged into their reserve positions while waves of doughboys advanced behind Sherman tanks toward Valmontone. The Americans already were within striking distance of the town and were shelling across the Via Casilina as far as Cave, four miles north of Valmontone.

Farther down the road, the British pinched the Germans closely by taking Ceprano, securing the Liri river crossing against stubborn resistance. Advance elements had to swim the river to penetrate the town, which is the west arm of an H-shaped junction of the Via Casilina and the north-south highway No. 82.

Dig Into Mountain Positions.

At Arce, the east arm of the junction 15 miles northwest of Cassino, Lynn Heinzerling, Associated Press correspondent with the 8th army, said the staggering German 1st parachute division, which held Cassino for so long, had reorganized and contested every step by the British and Canadians.

The road there is lined with high, forbidding peaks on the right and by trackless woodlands, fields and creek bottoms on the left. The Germans have dug in on every reverse slope and thrown down a plunging fire from mortars and machine guns, followed by brisk counter-attacks, Heinzerling said.

This fighting, described as some of the bitterest of the entire Italian campaign, was the Germans' only hope of staving off or slowing the 8th army's progress up the Via Casilina toward a juncture with the 5th army in the vicinity of Valmontone, 35 miles by air to the northwest.

Won in House to House Battle.

Artena, 2½ miles below Valmontone, was won Saturday after house to house fighting. An American tank spearhead entered it Friday, and infantry moved up, repulsing German infiltration attempts that night.

The 5th army smashing into German defenses along the constal route to Rome was winning back ground they had taken but later lost last February after the Anzio landings.

[An Algiers broadcast heard in London said the 5th had taken Carroceto, a Nazi strongpoint 10 miles west of fallen Cisterna.]

Prisoner Total Now 13,000.

Hour by hour the bag of German prisoners rose, with more than 13,000 already counted in the pens behind the front. The 5th army alone has taken more than 10,000 including 4,000 captured on the beachhead.

Fighter-bombers scouring the roads behind the battlefront brought the total four day bag of enemy vehicles destroyed or damaged to nearly 3,000, while medium and light bombers plastered Italian rail and highway communications.

Nineteen allied planes were lost yesterday during 3,000 sorties, which included blows by 500 to 750 Liberators and Flying Fortresses on railway yards and air fields at Marseille, Avignon, and other points in France. Seven enemy planes were downed.

GERMAN WAR REPORT

Sunday's German war bulletin, as broadcast from Berlin and received by the Associated Press, said in part:

"At the Italian front the enemy continued his large scale attack with new formations and with the focal points southwest of Velletri and south of Valmontone, in the Giugliano valley and at Ceprano. On both sides of Velletri all enemy attacks, supported by strong tank formations, failed in a hard, fluctuating fight.

"An attempt by Moroccan mountain troops to open Giugliano valley by advancing across the heights bordering the valley were without success.

U.S. 88TH AND 85TH DIVISIONS LEAD YANKS' ADVANCE

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, May 28 (AP).—The doughboy outfits which chased German forces 30 miles in 14 days over the rugged mountains of the Garigliano front were the first all-selective service divisions to go into the front lines—the 88th and 85th—and they were getting their first taste of actual combat.

The identity of these two divisions was made public today along with the names of their commanding officers—Maj. Generals John E. Sloan of Greenville, S. C., commander of the 88th, and John B. Coulter of El Paso, Tex.

Every state in the union is represented in both divisions, but about half the personnel of the 88th is from New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

The 85th cleaned out the enemy along the Tyrrhenian coast from Garigliano to the Pontine marshes, capturing Scouri, Formia, Gaeta, and Terracina on the way. Above them, the 88th drove across the Ausente valley, breaking the back of the Gustav line at Santa Maria and Spigno and driving thru the center of the Hitler line at Fondi.

Elliott's Romance with Duchess Again Denied

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 28.—The revived rumor that Col. Elliott Roosevelt, son of President Roosevelt, is engaged to marry the Duchess of Kent was denied here by a close friend of the latter tonight. He said the rumor was of the same caliber as one of a few months ago which purported that she and Noel Coward would be married.

YANKS BATTLE TO BREAK HINGES OF GERMAN LINE

Tribune Writer Tells of Fighting Near Rome.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE BEACHHEAD FORCES NEAR VALMONTONE, Italy, May 28.—On this sector facing the enemy line which is hinged by Valmontone on highway 6 [the via Casilina] and by Velletri, southwest on highway 7 [the Appian way] I viewed today the heightening battle for Rome.

We are not yet in view of the eternal city—the grand prize of the Italian campaign—for beyond Velletri rise the Alban hills. But they are the final high ground barrier before Rome and the drive is on at last in that direction.

Combat commanders and GIs with whom I talked today know that these final precious miles are not to be easily won. And I know what they meant as the Germans poured in artillery and tank fire from their strong holds at Velletri and Valmontone.

Keep Up Their Pounding.

Our big guns kept up their pounding of those two towns and also heavily shelled the road between in an effort to cut the enemy supply and communication line. The German in his resistance was employing many self-propelled 88 mm. guns and his Mark IV, V and VI tanks.

The Mark V's—called Panthers—which have just been encountered in this campaign are almost as heavy as the Mark VI's and are more maneuverable. The Mark V has a three-inch gun.

The enemy fought bitterly for Artena which is a few miles south of Valmontone. We took this town two days ago and yesterday afternoon the Germans tried to infiltrate back. We threw them out again. Then, last night, they launched a counter-attack in some force, striking with tanks, artillery, mortars and infantry.

Strong Switch Position.

In heavy fighting the Germans were thrown back before they could regain the outskirts of the town. Today they rained in shells for hours to harass Yank troops.

Artena apparently had been a strong switch position in connection with Valmontone and the enemy was selling it dearly.

From an observation post in the town, Valfontone and Velletri could be seen nestled on the hill slopes. One also could see great chunks being torn out of those towns by our guns, changing the gleaming white of their buildings to a dirty gray and black patchwork color scheme. The foe's shells and mortars whined over in constant reminder for us in the observation post to stretch flat.

Artena had not been badly hit in our initial attack but the German shells are now making rubble out of its houses. When the first doughboys entered they had a real find in an enemy storehouse—some magazines for our Browning automatic rifles. The Germans had captured that material in some previous engagement.

Chicagoan Takes Prisoners.

At the command post they are talking about a sergeant who became a hero last night and was again in the firing line today. He went out in the darkness, under heavy enemy machinegun fire, to bring in four wounded comrades.

They are talking, too, of a battle patrol led by Lt. Thomas Larson of Philadelphia, Pa. He and his men were deployed on both sides of a road near Artena when they spied 15 Germans marching down between them.

"Mow them down!" shouted Larson, and his men opened a crossfire. They killed six Germans and captured the other nine, five wounded. One Yank was hit.

At another place, 12 prisoners, including an officer, was the bag for Sgt. Domenic de Pietro of 215 W. Polk st., Chicago.

The mountain way between Cori and Artema is another journey's end for enemy materiel. In minutes I counted 22 destroyed Mark IVs, Vs, and VIs and more than 300 crippled self-propelled guns, armored cars and staff cars. The whole country side was a giant junk heap.

Generals Rewarded

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP).—Six air generals, including Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commander of the allied air force in the Mediterranean, have been awarded distinguished service medals, the war department announced today.

Eaker's award was for the "invaluable contribution to the success of air operations over Europe" which he made in building up the 8th air force in England between December, 1942, and last January, when he was transferred to the Mediterranean air command. His home is Washington.

F.D.R. MAY AGAIN WARN GERMANS OF ROME'S PERIL

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP).—Indications that the Germans may retire from Rome this week without a fight, and thus spare it from attack by the allies, are being studied in military and diplomatic quarters here, and there is hope among officials that developments will prove favorable.

The American attitude, as announced by President Roosevelt, is that the safety of Rome rests with the Germans, in whose power it has been since the fall of the Mussolini government. To the extent that the enemy made use of the city for military purposes, the President has argued, the allies have been compelled to attack it.

Whether the chief executive will restate this position in the critical days now at hand remains to be seen. His decision on this point may be influenced by military events.

HITLER AND JAP ENVOY MEET ON 'COLLABORATION'

Hot Over Channel

LONDON, May 28 (AP).—The sun blazed down from a cloudless sky for 14 hours today on Dover strait, sending the temperature to 94 degrees in the sun and 79 in the shade—the hottest day of the year. Storm clouds gathered over the French coast and blew across from the continent at nightfall. The wind freshened from a light northnortheasterly breeze and toward nightfall the thermometer dropped to 67. The sea was like a mill pond, but visibility was restricted to six or seven miles. High tides at Dover and Calais tomorrow will be at 5:33 a. m. and 5:59 p. m.

LONDON, May 28 (AP). — Adolf Hitler has conferred with the Japanese ambassador to Berlin on "acute questions of German-Japanese collaboration," the German radio said today as clouds of allied bombers laid another layer of pre-invasion bombs on Germany's western defenses.

Lt. Gen. Hiroshi Oshima.

Just what Hitler could expect from the diplomat, Lt. Gen. Hiroshi Oshima, was too hard a question for allied observers to fathom. The Berlin radio account said only that the meeting took place at Hitler's headquarters, with Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop also present.

Waiting for Troops: Nazis.

As allied planes swarmed across the channel, Berlin also put out the guess that Gen. Eisenhower was "waiting for fresh troops from America" before striking.

This was Whitsunday, and altho travel in Britain is curtailed on a national scale the urge to get out of London, if only for a few hours, had every train jammed.

Newspapers carried stories about invasion speculation in the United States and it was generally admitted that the last 10 days have increased the tension on this side of the Atlantic.

Best Time Called Past.

One British writer said the people were on edge and "it is our biggest moment since Dunkerque and just as trying a testing time for our nerves."

The Brussels radio, Nazi dominated, said the "allied high command has allowed the last week—the most favorable for invasion both from the point of view of tides and weather—go by because it has discovered flaws in the armament and preparations of the invasion forces."

Russian Army Shows Signs of Needing Men, Says Lanza

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

Russia is committed to an offensive to clear a considerable area of her own country still held by the axis and to get on with the job of arriving at Berlin.

The most likely and promising area for an offensive is between the Pinsk [Pripet] marshes on the north and the Carpathian mountains on the south. This is an 180 mile front.

The generally flat ground is very suitable for military operations and in the summer season it also usually is dry so that motor vehicles can operate across country. The Germans expect this offensive and have massed reserves to meet it.

Risky for Reds.

As pointed out heretofore, a Russian offensive in this sector is risky, unless the Russians have great superiority of forces. As it moves west, it is liable to attack on its left flank by enemy armies striking from the Carpathians.

It is also open to attack on the right flank, as soon as it passes the west end of the Pinsk marshes. This latter danger could be avoided by waiting until the Russian front north of the Pinsk marshes moves west and comes into line with Russian armies to the south.

Russia shows signs of lack of personnel. She has gained by the reduction of the Crimea. About 32 divisions there employed are now available for use elsewhere.

Superiority Possible.

From the pattern of the German bombing of railroads, these divisions seem to be en route to the area south of the Pinsk marshes, presumably to bolster the coming offensive. This may give the Russians the superiority they need to go ahead without waiting for the northern armies to catch up.

North of the Pinsk marshes the Russian front is 250 miles back of the line in the south. During their great attacks of the campaign which lasted from last July to April of this year, the maximum advance in any one month did not exceed 150 miles, and then only in the south. In the north the greatest advance in a single month has been about 100 miles, but the average is below 30. With 250 miles to go, it might take a considerable time to do it.

The front available in the north for an offensive is 180 miles from the Pinsk marshes to Vitebsk. Just the same as the front to the south. The front in the north could be extended to Pskov, which would be another 180 miles. There is no information available as to what the Russian plan is for this sector.

Romania a Possibility.

Still another front is open to the Russians. This is in Romania. An attack in this direction would lead to the oil fields. The Russians tried an attack in this direction at the beginning of May but it failed. Since then they appear to have lost their bridgeheads on the west side of the Dnestr river near Tiraspol. The axis has increased in strength in this sector.

This axis strength could be a danger signal. One of the best German generals in 1941 proposed that the plan of campaign then should be a march into Russia of German armies just north of the Black sea. They would then turn north and strike the Russians south of the Pinsk marshes from the rear.

The present axis right is in a good position for carrying out such a plan. The probability is that the axis will not try this, until, and if, it succeeds in defeating an invasion of west Europe. The fact that the axis is preparing so far ahead shows that they yet have hopes of beating the allies.

Both the axis and the allies have made extensive preparations. The allies have the advantage of being able to select the date and place.

Allies Appeal for Help of Central Italy Patriots

New York, May 28 (AP).—Gen. Harold R. L. G. Alexander, allied commander in Italy, has appealed to Italian patriots between Florence and Rome to supply the allies with information about German troop movements and reserves and to attack German communications, the British radio said today.

2,200 AMERICAN PLANES BOMB 3 NAZI OIL PLANTS

Strike Major Blow in Day of Record Raids.

LONDON, May 29 [Monday] (AP).—About 2,200 bombers and fighters, the greatest American air force ever sent on a single mission, slashed at targets in Germany yesterday, in the major blow of the heaviest single day in the western European air war.

The allied offensive continued thru the night with the French invasion coast given a battering and R. A. F. bombers reported back over the reich. The German radio reported alerts over Duesseldorf, Wuppertal and Cologne. The Budapest radio reported enemy planes—possibly from the Mediterranean theater—over southeastern Hungary.

German raiders struck the southern British coast last night and some persons were feared killed by a direct hit on a hotel in one town. At least one of the attackers was reported to have been shot down. Wings of a women's hospital in one town had to be evacuated as a precaution against gas explosions after a bomb hit a main a few yards away.

Smash at Oil Plants.

The American daylight force smashed synthetic oil plants at Merseburg, Zeitz, and Lutzkendorf, the tank ordnance depot at Konigsborn, and other unspecified targets in central Germany and the Cologne area. The fighters shot up locomotives, river barges, gun emplacements, and air fields.

In all, more than 8,500 tons of bombs were hurled on Europe from the channel coast to Leipzig by more than 6,000 British based planes.

American losses were 34 heavy bombers and 13 of the fighter escort. The German interceptors lost 93 planes, 61 of them to the American fighters and 32 to bomber gunners. Lt. William Y. Anderston, 7915 Vernon av., Chicago, bagged one German plane and shared another.

Of the total bomb weight, some 4,500 tons were unloaded during darkness Sunday morning by British forces of well over 1,000 bombers which struck the Germans' greatest western arsenal at Bourg-Leopold, Belgium, and a half dozen other important objectives in Germany, France, and Belgium.

Marauders Kept Busy.

American Marauders and Havocs led the way for the day's widespread assaults by the allied expeditionary air force, flying their 14th and 15th missions of the last 10 days.

Two forces of Marauders struck the Liege-Seraing and Liege-Renory rail bridges in Belgium. Other Marauder formations made two attacks each on two important bridges in northern France, and railway and other targets in France and Belgium including the rail center of Amiens. Five Marauders failed to return.

British night bombers smacked rail yards at Aachen, unannounced targets at Duesseldorf, an air field near Rennes, France; the French rail center of Nantes, and German defenses along the French coast. Mosquitoes attacked Berlin.

GREEK PREMIER SWEARS IN NAVY AND AIR CHIEFS

CAIRO, Egypt, May 28 (AP).—By assuming the war ministry, Premier George Papandreou has personally taken over the task of reorganizing the Greek military forces of the middle east and the guerrilla groups within Greece into a single army. Peter Rallis was sworn in as air minister and Alexander Mylonas as navy minister in the new National Union cabinet, with Adm. Peter Voulgaris remaining the commander in chief of the Greek fleet.

BURGLARS' LOOT TOTALS $1,000.

Mrs. Margaret Williams, 18 W. 73d st., told police last night that thieves stole an oriental rug, clothing, a radio, and a clock, with a total value said to be $1,000, from her apartment.

CATHOLIC HEADS IN BRITAIN BACK BOMBING WAR

Reply to Protest By French Cardinals.

LONDON, May 28 (AP).—The French nation would not wish Gen. Eisenhower's liberation of Europe to be imperiled by failure to disrupt German communications, the British Roman Catholic hierarchy said today in reply to French cardinals' plea to spare civilians in the allied bombing of France.

"We are sure your eminences recognize very clearly the connection between the present bombing operations and military operations, which have for their object to crown the long struggle, in which Frenchmen and Englishmen have stood shoulder to shoulder, with victory and the liberation of France," said the reply.

Signed by Archbishops.

It was signed by the Roman Catholic archbishops and bishops of England and Wales, and the archbishop of Edinburgh, and broadcast by the British broadcasting company's European service.

"We know very well," the statement continued, "the French understand what is at stake and are facing with fortitude not only those but all the many sufferings which are the price of liberation. They would not wish that the success of allied arms should be imperiled by failure to disrupt communications upon which German opposition will depend."

Grief Felt for Innocents.

The reply said the British know the horrors of air warfare and grief at the loss of innocent lives and damage to cultural and sacred buildings. It added:

"In notifying the British government of our reply to the appeal of your eminences that additional precautions should be taken to avoid sacrifice of innocent lives, we shall again repeat to them the value we set upon the clear and repeated assurances which they have given that pilots are instructed to take every precaution to keep within the smallest limits the infliction of death upon civilian populations, and of damage to sacred and cultural buildings."

RUSSIAN FRONT STILL QUIET; 14 PLANES DOWNED

London, May 28 (AP)—Continuance of the lull on the Russian front was reported tonight by both the Soviet and German bulletins. The brief Russian announcement said 14 German planes were shot down Saturday and that recently a Soviet Baltic fleet force sank a German submarine in the gulf of Finland.

The Germans reported local fighting on the Carpathian sector and said they had dispersed strong Soviet bands in "the rear area of the central front," with 2,500 prisoners taken. This apparently referred to Russian guerrilla forces. The Germans said they bombed Rovno and Sarny Saturday night.

(The Finnish communique as recorded by OWI said Soviet forces had attacked at several points on the long-quiet Finnish front, but had been repulsed with considerable losses.]

POLISH COUNCIL KNOCK AT DOOR DISTURBS ALLIES

LONDON, May 28 (AP).—A dilemma looms for Britain and the United States in plans of the Polish national council—now conferring in Moscow—to visit both countries to present its views of the underground and bolster a bid for its own reorganization if a rapprochement with the London Polish government fails.

Informed London quarters said the council's application to enter diplomatically-sealed Britain would have Soviet backing.

If Britain admits the council, the Polish government in exile, which called the council an upstart and denied it represented the underground movement, is sure to be offended. If entry is refused, Moscow, supporting the council, may be offended.

Assert Patriots' Rights.

No official statement has been made on the council's talks with Premier Stalin and Foreign Commissar Molotov. The council has said it would try to "establish contacts" with other governments.

It was understood in London that the talks followed these lines:

The council has asked that full use be made of the Polish underground in organizing the civil administration for liberated territory, similar to Russia's recent agreement with Czechoslovakia.

If the council can reach a basis for unity with the Polish government in London, a treaty with Russia parallel to the Russian-Czech pact will be signed immediately.

Accept Curzon Line.

Underground leaders were reported to have accepted the principle of the Curzon line, which would slice off some of Poland's pre-war eastern territory, but requested modification, especially in the south. It is believed the council received assurances that modifications would be discussed later.

The newspaper Pravda, in a dispatch broadcast by Tass news agency, attacked the London Polish government for its rebuff of the council, asserting "these gentlemen who style themselves the 'government' in general know nothing and cannot know anything about what goes on in the living Poland of the people."

Pravda also was critical of what it termed the "so-called national committee of Americans of Polish descent."

SPENDS 2 HOURS IN BERLIN, SEES NOT ONE ROOF

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, May 28 (AP).—Irish soldiers of the British army who returned home on the exchange liner Gripsholm, which sailed today for the United States, said bomb damage in Berlin was tremendous and the Germans were nervous about the western invasion.

[Flight Lt. James Grocott of Auckland, N. Z., who said he was at a German prison camp where 47 allied flyers are reported to have been shot after a break, was believed to have given the British foreign office a report, said a London dispatch.]

"It was amusing to see the change that came over the Germans," said Sgt. H. McManus, who worked in hospitals near Frankfurt. "In the towns even children used to shout 'Heil Hitler,' but that has disappeared." Stanley Plunkett of Dublin, said he was in Berlin two hours and every house he saw was roofless. "But I would not say German morale is poor," he added. "Their transport system has great powers of recuperation. Everything is subordinated to getting the rail tracks repaired."

Plans Wedding

LEATRICE JOY GILBERT.

Hollywood, Cal., May 27 (AP).—Leatrice Joy Gilbert, 19, daughter of Jack Gilbert, late film idol, will be married July 10 to Pvt. George Hoover, 28, of the army signal corps, her mother, Leatrice Joy Hook, former screen star, announced tonight.

Young Hoover is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hoover, members of a prominent Los Angeles family. Miss Gilbert was formerly married to Michael Carney, whom she met while she was a junior at Stanford university. Hoover now is stationed at Culver City, Cal.

WHAT 2,500 TONS OF BOMBS DID TO 7 RAIL CENTERS

LONDON, May 28 (AP).—Here is what 2,500 tons of bombs did to seven Nazi rail centers Saturday, aerial reconnaissance pictures showed:

Mannheim—Rolling stock and sheds destroyed, tracks damaged and fires started.

Kaisruhe—Large fires and explosions in the center of the yards; several concentrations of bombs hit rolling stock.

Konz Karthaus—Rail bridge over the Saar river and adjacent yards destroyed, with severe damage to rolling stock.

Neunkirchen—Depot and freight car repair shops hit and tracks blasted.

Ludwigshaven—Damage to rolling stock and tracks and an explosion in the I. G. Farbenindustrie chemical plant.

Saarbrucken—Freight depot and rolling stock hit, overhead rail bridge snapped, car workshops, turntable, main passenger station, freight car repair shops and locomotive depot hit.

Strasbourg—Two round houses hit squarely, a locomotive depot, repair shops, repair tracks and rolling stock smashed; an aircraft engine repair factory hit.

TITO REPORTS VICTORIES IN CROATIA FIGHTS

LONDON, May 28 (AP).—Yugoslav Partisans in Croatia have counter-attacked successfully in some places and elsewhere continue to beat back German attacks, Marshal Tito's headquarters announced today.

"Attempts by Utashi and Germans to penetrate into liberated territory in the Zagorje district of Croatia are meeting strong resistance from our units," said a bulletin. "In one battle more than 60 Germans and Utashi were wiped out.

"Two trains carrying troops and war materials were destroyed on the Zagreb-Belgrade line. In Hercegovina and Slovenia, our units continue to carry out offensive operations."

CHARGES PLOT IN U. S. TO GIVE RUSSIA POLAND

Buffalo, N. Y., May 28 [Special].—An attack on support by a portion of the American press and radio for Soviet Russia's plans to dismember Poland and swallow the Baltic republics was cheered tonight at the opening session here of the three day convention of the Polish American congress.

Charles Rozmarek of Chicago, president of the congress' executive committee, delivered the attack in an address before 15,000 delegates and guests. He denounced Russian use of American lend-lease arms for any purpose other than warring on Germany. Restoration of the Polish republic with pre-war boundaries intact is a principal objective of the congress.

"We are not supplying the soviets with American airplanes, tanks, and ammunition so as to enable her to dismember Poland, the charter member of the united nations," Rozmarek said. "Nor are we sending Russia lend-lease equipment to enable her to obliterate the peaceful neighboring republics of Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, or any other country whose sole sin is preference for a democratic government to an atheistic dictatorship."

Contrary to Charter.

Rozmarek asserted there are disquieting indications of late that certain Americans are ready to push Poland and the Baltic countries into the Russian sphere, contrary to the four freedoms and the Atlantic charter.

"Since Russia broke off diplomatic relations with Poland, certain American radio commentators and certain American newspaper columnists have been waging a deliberate campaign of vilification, not only against our gallant ally and friend—Poland, but also against native Americans of Polish descent," he said.

"These Americans seem to forget that pushing millions of people into the Russian orbit means forcing them to live under an anti-democratic government with its abhorrent collecticism and its one party system run by a secret police force more efficient than the dreaded Gestapo.

"It was Russia's agreement with Germany to dismember their neighbor Poland which actually started this war.

Laments Lack of Aid.

"At the time of the German invasion, if the Poles had the arms and ammunition that Russia subsequently received under lend-lease, they could have saved the peace for Europe. In Poland's most tragic hour of need, no nation was prepared to rush to her aid."

Rep. Dingell [D., Mich.] told the delegates, "the injustices of the last war and the shortcomings of the treaty of Versailles insofar as they applied to Poland will not be repeated at the conference table following World War II."

He declared "the consequence of imposing upon Poland a boundary that will expose her to her enemies and the reduction of her domain to a point where it will impair her growth and virility, or the gerrymandering of her frontiers so as to deprive her of essential raw materials which will reduce her to dependency and weakness instead of making her independent and strong, will prove disastrous and a threat to future peace."

"Poland as the key to peace in Europe must at this late date be so recognized," Dingell asserted.

Move to Head Off U. S. Landings Hinted.

CHUNGKING, China, May 28 (AP).—Japanese troops have launched a drve down the Hankow rail route in northern Hunan province, the Chinese high command announced today, in a possible effort to occupy the entire Canton-Hankow railway and establish defense against possible future American landings on the China coast. The new push may presage a fourth battle for Changsha.

After concentrating troops in the area of Yoyang [Yochow] in the northeast corner of Hunan, the Japanese advanced in four columns last night.

Town in Pincers.

They crossed the Sinchiang river, first Chinese line of defense to the south, twisting eastward from Lake Tungting, and attacked areas east and west of the rail town of Sinchiang, 20 miles south of Yoyang. A bulletin reported heavy fighting there.

At the same time, the invaders drove from bases between Tungting lake and the Yangtze river, west of Yoyang, from which the rice bowl offensive was launched a year ago.

Presumably trying to safeguard his rail communications to the north in Hupeh province and to protect the flanks of forces which crossed the Sinchiang, the enemy continued a drive based at Isungyang, 75 miles south-southwest of Hankow. In this section a Japanese column reached a point near Tungcheng in Hupeh's southern bulge, 45 miles east-southeast of Yoyang.

Fight at Tashaping.

Fighting was in progress at Tashaping, north of Tungcheng, the Chinese bulletin said, and enemy troops advancing southeastward from Tsungyang still were being held in the Chungpao-Siaochaping sector.

With the crossing of the Sinchiang, the invaders were about 80 miles from Changsha, for which they already have fought three battles against the Chinese commander, "Little Tiger" Gen. Hsueh Yueh, governor of Hunan. But the "Little Tiger" appeared to face a far greater test this time.

If the drive succeeded, it would neutralize all allied bases between the Canton-Hankow railway and the coast, it was said, and deprive an American fleet of land based fighter cover. It also would aggravate China's economic crisis, and some feared it would enable the Japanese to fight fully a year longer before ultimate defeat.

The Chinese made no mention of Honan fighting, but the Nippon Times, quoted in a Tokyo broadcast, commented that the fall of Loyang, northwestern Honan citadel, "must be considered a military event of most devastating character to the future plans of Chiang Kai-shek." It said the city's capture had "dealt a mortal blow against United States air units stationed in Chinese controled territory, which have vainly been seeking air bases within flying radius of the Japanese mainland."

Fighting Rages at Loyang.

At last reports, fighting was still raging in the Loyang sector and in the area to the southwest, but the Chinese were conceding the probability of Loyang's loss.

To the southwest in western Yunnan province, the Chinese bulletin said that heavy rains had stalled operations in the Salween river offensive aimed at juncture ultimately with American-Chinese forces in North Burma, and that there was little change in positions on the battle fronts.

WOMAN'S 8 DAY SEARCH FOR PUP ENDS IN SUCCESS

Newark, N. J., May 28 [Special].—Mrs. Gertrude Vachal's eight day search for her lost pup, Tony, ended in success today when the errant fox terrier showed up at a firehouse.

The pup scampered out of Mrs. Vachal's car May 10 in a Newark parking lot when an attendant opened the door in her absence. Asserting she feared to go home without the dog, Mrs. Vachal thereupon set up a vigil in the car, sleeping there and having her meals brought to her.

She explained that her ailing father, Edward L. Salisbury, retired shipping executive of Niantic, Conn., was so attached to Tony that news of any disaster to the animal might have affected his health.

Capt. James J. Walsh of the Newark fire department read of Mrs. Vachal's vigil and recalled that his men had been feeding a stray fox terrier. He notified Mrs. Vachal, who came and claimed the dog.

WOMAN SHOT IN NECK.

Delilah Graham, 19, Negro, 3604 Wentworth av., told police Saturday that she was accidentally shot in the neck while she and her sister, Mrs. Zelda Finney, 35, were examining a revolver. She was taken to County hospital.

Baton Rouge, La., May 28 (AP).—Male wearing of coats or ties would be illegal in Louisiana between June 1 and Oct. 1—Sundays and weddings excepted—under a bill introduced in the house at the weekend by Rep. The measure would make any violation a misdemeanor and have judges direct sheriffs to seize offending coats and ties and turn them over to the UNRRA commission "for use where needed."

EAGER BEAVERS PACK A MIGHTY WALLOP FOR JAPS

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT A U. S. BOMBER BASE IN INDIA, May 28.—Huddled about a long concrete runway at this desolate, stifling spot on the arid plains of India is a group of mud walled, straw thatched native huts. On the door of each is a drawing of a Disney-like beaver riding a bomb to earth. The beaver carries a machine gun and wears a look of grim determination. He's a symbol of one of the most famous air force units in India, the Eager Beaver Bombing company, dealers in sudden death from the skies.

Lt. Arthur W. Flesch.

On Jan. 20, 1943, this Liberator squadron was organized in India with only two veteran plane crews which had seen combat. The others were untried replacements from the United States. Just five days later new and old crews plowed thru anti-aircraft fire and Zeros to smash at Rangoon. Since then the Beavers have poured 1,636 tons of bombs on the Japs on 168 missions. Their four-engined ships have ranged far and wide over southeast Asia, striking at Mandalay and Rangoon repeatedly, searching the coast of Burma for enemy shipping, laying waste freight yards at Bangkok, Thailand; ravaging Jap dock installations in the Andaman Islands, and machine gunning trains along the Moulmein-Bangkok railway.

Group Loses Just Two Planes.

In those 168 missions the Beavers lost only two planes. One disappeared into the clouds over Rangoon with four Zeros tailing it. Rangoon claimed the second one, too. Six months ago Lt. Roy Vaughan, 24, of Amarillo, Tex., was trying to nurse his plane home on three engines when a Zero made an overhead pass, misjudged and cut his tail off.

But it has not been easy sledding even for the Beavers who got back. I am writing this in an operations hut. On the table in front of me is a cigar box filled with jagged chunks of discolored metal. They were picked from the vitals of the bomber Happy Go Lucky, which came home last fall with 80 holes in her, a dead co-pilot and a badly wounded pilot.

Bombardier Lt. William Miller of Portland, Ore., won the silver star for that trip. When an explosive shell fell in the cockpit, instantly killing the co-pilot, Lt. John Podawiltz of Detroit, and wounding the pilot, Lt. Harold Larkin of Seekonk, Mass., Miller flew the plane to friendly territory, then revived Larkin enough for him to land the craft. Larkin also was awarded the silver star.

Boys Find Fun, Too.

The Happy Go Lucky crew comprises only a few of the many Beaver men who have taken a beating in the Jap skies and lived to tell about it. Yet, to see these boys between missions is like seeing a group of carefree American lads at a summer camp. They sleep long hours in the hot afternoon, lounge on verandas reading dog-eared magazines, and play prankish tricks on one another to while away the time. As late afternoon brings comparative coolness they emerge in underwear or shorts to play tennis or volley-ball or race around the huts chasing Bombsight, an ecstatic little black dog which is the squadron's mascot.

A huge elephant from a nearby Indian temple is a familiar sight in the camp, its driver having learned very quickly that the Americans are willing to pay good rupees for a ride on his charge. The pilots boast that they are "building up lots of elephant time." A few have even been checked out on solo hops aboard the great beast. The only occupant of the camp who objects to his presence is Bombsight, who is not at all intimidated by his size.

Bombsight Has Some Problems.

Bombsight is quite a story in herself. More than a year ago she flew over from the United States with a replacement crew. Since then she has been taken along on dozens of combat missions, riding on the flight deck in more than 100 combat hours.

The squadron commander, Capt. Hilliard Gandy of Hemphill, Tex., 24, explains that Bombsight is taken only on short low altitude missions because the pressure hurts her ears. "Besides, there are no toilet facilities aboard for a dog," he adds.

When not flying, Bombsight usually is racing around the camp, perched on the hood of a jeep, or off hunting jackals half again as large as herself. Recently, however, her activities have been limited by motherhood. Another replacement plane brought in a new mascot named Roger, and soon Bombsight presented the Beavers with five pups.

Chicagoan Heads Bombardiers.

One hut in the camp is decorated with a picture of a beaver clad in a Sherlock Holmes outfit and labeled "The Eager Beaver Detective Agency; We Never Sleep." This is the home of Lt. Arthur W. Flesch, 23, of 1035 W. Lill av., Chicago, who is squadron bombardier of the Beavers. Flesch, a former apprentice machinist with the International Harvester company, for 16 months has been leading missions over Jap country. His 52 strikes have won him the distinguished flying cross and the air medal with a cluster. In addition, he is provost marshal of the camp.

Flesch also is an acknowledged jackal hunter. He shoots them from racing jeeps with pistols and submachine guns.

Besides Flesch, the Beavers include several other midwestern Yanks: Lt. William Spurrell of Seneca, Ill.; Capt. Charles Cashion, a former Chicago newspaper reporter who now makes his home in Los Angeles; Staff Sgt. Bruce Croft of Howell, Mich.; Staff Sgt. Everett Harrell of Indianapolis, Ind.; Tech. Sgt. Clarence Smith of Charlevoix, Mich.; Staff Sgt. John Vawter of Oblong, Ill.; Staff Sgt. Sylvester Witek, Milwaukee, Wis., and Staff Sgt. Frederick Meyer, Neillesville, Wis.

ALLIES CRUMBLE JAP ATTACK ON VILLAGE IN INDIA

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, May 28 (AP). — A Japanese night lunge against Naga village, north of Kohima on the road to the vital Dimapur railhead in India, has been beaten off with heavy enemy losses, allied headquarters announced today.

The surprise assault, supported by artillery and mortar fire, crumbled at dawn Thursday after the Japanese ran into a withering fire from the allied defenses. It apparently was a desperation attack by enemy forces whose strength has been steadily whittled down since their Indian offensive failed.

The allied bulletin said the Japanese had been able to concentrate a considerable weight of artillery and mortars, but were unable to breach the outpost's defenses. Dimapur is on the Assam-Bengal rail line, chief allied supply route.

British Open Attack.

South of Kohima, British forces began a general advance against enemy strong points yesterday and an attack was reported still under way against enemy positions on Arandura spur, covering the Tiddim road.

The announcement failed to mention the American-Chinese forces attacking the Japanese base of Myitkyina, for the first omission since the enemy airdrome north of the city was captured on May 18.

[A Chinese bulletin broadcast by Chungking radio reported forces of Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell had reached the southern end of Myitkyina in a stab forward of 1,000 yards, while another group stabbed toward the southeast section of the city. The enemy suffered heavily in another thrust from the west of the city.]

Yesterday's allied bulletin said Brig.-Gen. Frank Merrill's forces were closing in from the south of Myitkyina.

OF GAS RATIONING

Phillips 66

CARE FOR YOUR CAR—FOR YOUR COUNTRY

Because gasoline rationing affects the daily life of every American . . . as well as the entire conduct of the war . . . Phillips, a major producer of butadiene (the chief ingredient in synthetic rubber) and 100-octane aviation gasoline, publishes this message as a contribution to the general understanding of the current gasoline situation.

The bright side of gas rationing: every American is glad that the motor fuel which he is not getting is serving vital war needs.

More and more petroleum products are going to our armed forces. In addition, farmers have just been harvesting their winter crops and completed preparation of their fields for spring sowing. Obviously all of us are glad to share our gasoline with the farmer who needs it to increase food production for us and our allies.

The dark side of the picture is the loss of approximately five per cent of the civilian supply of motor fuel to the black market. This means that 2,500,000 gallons of gasoline every day flow to illegal use. If the black market in gasoline could be smashed, it is estimated that the A-ration for every motorist in the country could be increased twenty-five per cent!

Your government asks you to do your part to break the back of the coupon racket, by endorsing every gasoline ration coupon in your possession. If you have not already done so, please take this very important step today, to help smash the black market in gasoline.

REVOLT IN SOUTH THORN IN SIDE OF DEMOCRATS

May Affect Ticket to Be Selected Here.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—The revolt against the New Deal and the fourth term in the south, culminating in the threat of Texas and South Carolina to bolt the Chicago nominations, may influence profoundly the ticket that will emerge from the Democratic convention.

Rep. Rayburn.

Not that the convention will be deterred by southern disaffection from renominating Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term, if he is willing, as he now appears to be, for the delegates to the convention already chosen and instructed for him assure his renomination by an overwhelming majority. Many Democratic leaders, however, believe Mr. Roosevelt will not risk certain defeat and that if he fails to dissipate the southern insurgency, particularly in Texas, he will decline to be a candidate.

In the New Deal camp the southern revolt is minimized. There is supreme faith in this quarter that the political acumen and resourcefulness for which Mr. Roosevelt is renowned will rout the insurgents and assure the casting of the Texas and South Carolina electoral votes for the Chicago ticket.

Opposed to Concessions.

There is no disposition to make concessions to the Texans on the terms of support they proclaimed: The seating of the anti-fourth term delegation at the convention, the restoration of the two-thirds rule for nominations and platform declarations upholding segregation of white and colored school children, and opposing the Supreme court's decision according Negroes the right to vote in primaries.

On the contrary, the intention is to start off by seating the Roosevelt fourth term delegation from Texas despite the fact that it was chosen by a rump convention consisting of the minority which after being beaten, walked out of the regular Democratic state convention. The majority group will be excluded on the ground of its refusal to agree in advance to abide by the will of the convention.

Appeasement Expected.

By some Democratic leaders the President is expected to attempt the appeasement of the southerners, if on the eve of the convention he shall have determined to accept a fourth term. Appeasement, it is suggested, might take the form of the nomination of Sam Rayburn of Texas, speaker of the house, for Vice President.

The rejection of Vice President Wallace for renomination and the naming of a conservative southerner, like Rayburn, in his place might justifiably be calculated to allay much of the revolt in the south against the Roosevelt regime. It would be a form of appeasement, however, exceedingly hard for Mr. Roosevelt to attempt.

Wallace not only is Mr. Roosevelt's choice for renomination but the insistent choice of the New Dealers and other left wingers, including the Communists, both wings of the American Labor party and the CIO political action committee.

If the Texans should remain unappeased, the Roosevelt faction will resort to court action to get Roosevelt electors on the ballot. In Texas the names of Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees do not appear on the ballot. Only the names of the Presidential electors appear.

Court Action Planned.

Court action is contemplated to compel the substitution of the Presidential electors chosen by the rump Roosevelt state convention for the electors named by the regular anti-fourth term convention. If this action should fail, the alternative would be the filing of the Roosevelt electors as a third party ticket. With the Democratic vote thus divided the Republican electors might win.

If the anti-fourth term electors should win and carry out the threat to vote for Democrats other than those nominated at Chicago they might throw the election of President into the house and of Vice President into the senate, whereupon the election of the Republican ticket would become exceedingly likely.

Louisiana elected an anti-fourth term delegation to the Chicago convention. Mississippi and Virginia are considering action similar to that of Texas. South Carolina couched its threat of a bolt in a postponement of the selection of electors to an adjourned session of the state convention after the Chicago convention.

Condemns Power.

The South Carolina Democratic platform of which State Sen. George Warren was the author has just come to hand. It condemns the "concentration of powers in the executive branch of government at the expense of the legislative and judicial branches." It deplores "the tendency of some of the leaders of the national Democratic party to unduly favor regimentation, collectivism, burocratic control, and other measures and means characteristic of totalitarian rule."

It calls for a reassertion of state rights. It asks restoration of the two-thirds rule for Democratic nominations. And asserting that "our system of government is greater than any personality" it urges a constitutional amendment limiting the tenure of the Presidency to two terms of four years each."

Roosevelt Won't Run; Party to Pick Byrd, Says Democrat

BY THOMAS MORROW.

John U. Barr of New Orleans, La., national head of the "Draft Byrd for President" movement, paused in Chicago yesterday between trains and predicted nomination of his candidate. He reiterated his statement that President Roosevelt would not be a candidate and said the President's decision would be dictated not by ill health but by political acumen.

John U. Barr.

As proof of his assertions, Barr pointed to "the present crackup of the solid south, a country-wide fear of the New Deal's attempt to create a race problem, and to sponsor continued alleged emergencies." He said the flood of mail attracted by the movement to elect Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia shows a "ground swell of dissatisfaction, uneasiness and fear" among Democrats.

Intends to Keep Up Fight.

Barr was asked if his followers would turn to a third party movement if President Roosevelt or one of his choice is forced upon the Democrats. He said only that he "would keep up the fight right along the line," added that there is a southern Democrat party in formation, and asserted "that the people will find a way of expressing their choice."

"Jim Kramer, our executive secretary, and I have just arrived after attending the Texas Democratic convention in Austin and there we witnessed the revelation of the sham and fraud of those frenzied pay roll New Deal cry babies," Barr said.

Barr contended that New Deal setbacks in the south have proved that the Democratic party will be seriously injured by any further attempt to foist a fourth term on the people.

Plan Headquarters in Chicago.

Barr said arrangements have been made to open headquarters in Hotel Sherman the latter part of this month. He said present plans are to redouble "our efforts in the north, south, east, and west, and not stop until we have purged our party of the last New Deal crack-pot and burocrat."

Barr expressed the hope that while the Democrats are nominating Byrd the Republicans will select a strong candidate so the country may be returned to the two party system. Sen. Byrd, he said, can restore the prestige of the Democratic party.

GREEN PREDICTS ROOSEVELT WILL REDISCOVER U. S.

emerge from this war the strongest nation in the world. It must assume leadership, but it will be up to other nations to coöperate with us for peace.

Opposes Armed Alliances.

"I am against military alliances with any other country in the world—that's not isolationalism, America has never been isolationist. The integrity of the country, its sovereignty must be maintained. We always ought to wait on congress if we are to remain a republic. I disagree with any military alliance with England—people do not take us into war; it's perverted leaders of war that do that, as Hitler, Mussolini, and the Japanese military clique."

Bricker urged continuing conference among the nations to preserve the peace, instead of military alliances, and that America must keep herself strong.

"The only hope for the world is to maintain the integrity and sovereignty of this country and protect the constitutional processes of government," he said.

Urges Subcommittee Move.

Bricker said he would recommend to his Mackinac subcommittee that it make recommendation covering these points in general for the party national platform. Sen. Taft of Ohio is to be Ohio's member of the convention's resolutions committee.

Gov. Dewey, returning tonight from a military review at Indiantown Gap military reservation, in his conference said he agreed with Bricker that all candidates should discuss the issues. He reiterated, however, that he is not a candidate for nomination but is sticking to his job as governor of New York. As to the Mackinac utterance, Dewey said his attitude was elaborated in his recent New York speech. In this he said in solving post-war problems there must be a durable cohesion between the United States, Britain, Russia, and China.

He reiterated that, while his position of not being a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination is unchanged, he is doing nothing to discourage talk about his leading in preconvention delegate support, and he expects to have suggestions for the 1944 party platform.

The New York executive was asked flatly if he was ready to announce whether he is a candidate.

"My position on that remains unchanged," he replied.

"Will you accept the nomination?"

Not Discouraging Talk.

"What are you doing to discourage the talk?" [about being the leading candidate] he was asked.

"Nothing," came his immediate reply.

Dewey, answering a question, said that if consulted he will express his views as to what should be done in the national platform. He said individuals have asked him for his ideas, but no one in authority to act for the platform committee to be appointed at the convention.

Twenty-one Republican governors and 15 Democrats are to attend this conference. Arriving governors, sitting on the porches overlooking the Blue Ridge, are talking politics, but controversial political matters are taboo on the speaking program. It's a 1944 listening post.

Midwest Sentiment Strong.

Among the Republicans are several spoken of for Vice President—Gov. Green, who has much prestige among the governors, Gov. Hickenlooper of Iowa, Gov. Schoeppel of Kansas, and Gov. Griswold of Nebraska. There is a strong undercurrent that the midwest should have a place on the ticket, and a feeling that Gov. Warren of California, keynoter, even as a running mate, would have difficulty in carrying his home state for the ticket.

The bread basket region of the continent also is the center of political gravity in presidential elections, and those of the section's governors now on the scene say that the midwest's post-war views must prevail in the party platform to assure a November victory.

Super-government blue prints of seaboard internationalists are scoffed at. Gov. Bricker's utterances on post-war policies have made him friends.

Illinois Platform Studied.

Gov. Green and his Illinois platform have evoked wide interest in other states. Green, who in the last three days has been in Schenectady, N. Y., where he spoke on post-war problems on a farmer forum radio program in Albany, and where he was the guest of Gov. Dewey, is expounding the midwest idea. He takes the view that sentiment is so strongly nationalist that the President himself will veer in that direction when the campaign starts up.

"The Mackinac charter has been approved by the unanimous vote of the Illinois Republican state convention," Green said in a press statement. "The pronouncement prescribes a basis for the coöperation of nations of good-will for the maintenance of peace, with the preservation of the sovereignty of each nation.

"In the adoption of that charter, the voice of the midwest has spoken. It is, in my opinion, so powerful that the fourth term candidate will duplicate his campaign of four years ago by becoming more and more nationalistic as the election approaches. I predict that the New Deal will, for election purposes, rediscover the United States of America."

BATISTA CHOICE CUBAN FAVORITE FOR PRESIDENT

HAVANA, Cuba, May 28 (AP). — More than 2,000,000 Cuban voters will select a president and other public officials in general elections June 1 that may reflect the popularity of Gen. Fulgencio Batista after four years as president and a decade as strong man of the nation.

The president has declared himself and the country's forces neutral in the election, but all four government parties are supporting his close friend and collaborator, Carlos Saladrigas, for the presidency. The opposition has claimed Saladrigas' election would mean continuation of Batista's policies.

114 REPUBLICANS VOW 3D TERM FIGHT IN FUTURE

Washington, D. C., May 28 [Special].—The written assurances of 114 leading Republicans that they will fight a third term try by any future Republican president were offered today as indication of a considerable movement to limit the presidential tenure of office to eight years.

Unqualified anti-third term answers of prominent Republican governors, senators and congressmen were included in the announcement of results of a survey conducted by Pathfinder magazine and James L. Wick, editor of the Niles [O.] Daily Times. The replies were regarded as especially significant inasmuch as the questions contained no reference to President Roosevelt, who now is serving a third term.

Among the G. O. P. leaders subscribing to the anti-third term sentiment are: Rep. Martin, Republican minority leader of the house, Gov. Bricker [O.], Sen. Vandenberg [Mich.] Gov. Griswold [Neb.], Sen. Buck [Del.], Sen. Hawkes [N. J.], Sen. Taft [O.], Rep. Luce [Conn.], Gov. Green, Rep. Arends, Rep. Day, Rep. Howel and Rep. Johnson, all of Illinois.

DE GAULLE HOLDS UP TRIP; AWAITS ACTION BY U. S.

ALGIERS, May 28 (AP). — Gen. Charles De Gaulle has delayed his departure for London a few days pending assurances from Washington, D. C., of authoritative American participation in the forthcoming tripower conference, a French national committee representative said today.

He said De Gaulle wants a United States representative in London with power to commit his government.

EASTERN OPINION.

The New York Daily News has prepared a moving picture to show how deeply that newspaper, with the largest circulation by far in the United States, reaches into every section and social group within its territory.

The film was made for soliciting advertisments, but there is a lesson in it for the Republican party, and particularly for its leaders in the east. The New York News is outspoken in its opposition to internationalism. It snorts at all kinds of one-worldism, and so, too, it might be added, do its closest rivals in New York for circulation leadership. Obviously these views are not unpopular in the east. The New York News alone sells far more papers every day than all of the internationalist papers together, including those that can't quite make up their minds on this issue.

Any one would think that the Republican delegates from the east would not overlook the plain meaning of these circulation figures. The trouble is that the eastern delegations include too many rich men, some of them men of immense wealth. Their interests are often at variance with those of the mass of the people. The so-called leaders do not associate with the average Republican, and they do not read the popular newspapers. If the delegates hope to nominate and elect a Republican for President, they would be wise to acquaint themselves with public opinion by reading the newspapers with the great circulations.

In New York City, the Daily News sells more than 2 million papers each day, the Mirror, 770,000, and the Journal and American, 641,000. Editorially, all of them oppose any surrender of American sovereignty to Europe. The pro-internationalist papers are the Herald-Tribune, with a daily circulation of about 249,000, the Post with 182,000, the Times with 419,000, and PM, with a puny 137,000.

The Herald-Tribune cannot win a single convert to the Republican cause. The Times is traditionally Democratic. The smear sheets, the Post and PM, are politically negligible. It is a grave mistake for Republican leaders to offend the millions by catering to views which are demonstrably lacking in popular appeal. The die-hard internationalists will not desert the New Deal under any circumstances and they aren't worth trying for.

SLUM CLEARANCE BY PRIVATE ENTERPRISE.

A frequent and false contention of public housing advocates is that government has to undertake the job of slum clearance, with all the waste, tax evasion, political favoritism, and social worker interference in the lives of tenants that public housing seems unable to escape.

Private enterprise can build modern housing to rent at moderate rates. It did it every day until the war stopped most building. Private builders consistently got more housing value for a dollar than public housing developments were able to do. Nathan Straus of New York, for example, worked conscientiously for several years as head of the United States housing authority, but none of the public developments he supervised ever equaled the value-cost ratio of a private housing project that he built before taking the public post.

Private enterprise has not been active in slum clearance for one principal reason. It has lacked the power of condemnation that public agencies have had available to assemble land for their projects. Without condemnation power, a few landholders can hold out for extortionate prices which, if paid, make the project uneconomic.

The Illinois neighborhood redevelopment act, now being tested in the courts, offers one solution of this difficulty. It would extend the power of condemnation to privately financed corporations for slum clearance and the erection of modern housing. The Home Builder's Association of Metropolitan Washington, an organization of private builders, has recently proposed a second plan.

Under the Washington proposal, a public housing agency would exercise its right of eminent domain to condemn land for housing development, and then sell the land to a private corporation. The corporation, as a condition of purchase, would agree to erect housing units to certain specifications and to rent them at fixed maximum rents. A New York statute embodying this principle of resale of publicly condemned land has been held constitutional by the courts of that state and the United States Supreme court refused to hear an appeal from the ruling.

The housing project would pay taxes like any other private property. Its tenants would be selected like any other private tenants, except that tenants who could not pay the rents would receive direct subsidies from some public relief agency to supplement the payments they were themselves able to make.

While the shibboleth of the public housing movement has been the assertion, never proved, that a third of the nation is ill-housed, the very poor have never been able to afford the rents charged in public housing developments. Analysis of the incomes of tenants in a number of public housing projects has shown that the majority of them come from the middle, not the lower, third of the population, income-wise.

The subsidies paid the public projects by the federal government are sufficient to amortize the cost of the developments. The rent paid by tenants has usually provided only for operation and maintenance, and, even so, the poor about whom the professional housers weep so copiously rarely are able to enjoy the benefits.

The Washington proposal would provide decent housing, thru direct subsidies, to those unable to pay rent for decent accommodations, without at the same time extending unwarranted assistance to self-sufficient families who do not need, and should not want, charity. It would also offer a pragmatic test of the old question of whether slum dwellers make slums or slums make slum dwellers. The subsidized tenant would have the same privileges and obligations as the self-sustaining tenant. If either failed to respect the rights of his fellow tenants, he would be ousted.

Public housing projects are, by their own legal admissions, charitable undertakings. Their charity is tremendously wasteful and more frequently than not is extended to families whose economic circumstances do not justify it. If public funds are to be used to provide decent quarters for those unable to pay for them, let the payments be open, not hidden. Privately owned and managed housing, with direct subsidies to poor tenants, offers such a method.

A NAVY RACKET.

John D. Corrigan, who holds a reserve commission of commander in the navy, has been assigned for two years to inspections of war plants. The exact nature of his inspections has not been made clear, except that they sometimes resulted in the navy's taking over plants, and sometimes in official action transferring management from one company to another.

Corrigan, while on active duty, retained his half interest in Corrigan, Osborne & Wells, an engineering concern, with offices in New York and Chicago. The Truman senate committee has been investigating charges that companies inspected by Corrigan subsequently hired Corrigan, Osborne & Wells to advise them, and that those which did so had no further trouble with the navy department. Those companies which failed to avail themselves of the opportunity, it was alleged, did have trouble, extending to the loss of their plants in some instances.

The committee unearthed two letters written by Corrigan. One forwarded a list of war contract awards, restricted by navy regulations to official use, to one of his civilian employes in Chicago, with the suggestion that the employe solicit the successful firms for business. In another letter Corrigan wrote that his "fine Italian hand" had been concerned in taking the management of a Detroit plant from the Hudson Motor company and transferring it to the Westinghouse Electric company.

At about this point in the inquiry Sen. Truman erupted with the demand that the navy bring Corrigan before a court martial at once. The senator termed the case the "most flagrant" that has come to the committee's attention.

There will be general agreement with the senator's demand, but the senate committee must not let its investigation of the scandal stop at Corrigan. In his two days of testimony, the officer insisted that his activities had the full sanction of his superiors in the navy. He could be expected to make this assertion whether it were true or not, but it is obvious that if there is any responsibility at all in the conduct of naval affairs, actions of the importance of those described to the committee are not to be left to the sole and final judgment of an officer of Corrigan's rank, who was a civilian only two years ago.

Either the navy department is unbelievably disorganized and inefficient, or Corrigan's actions were approved by higher authorities, either uniformed or civilian. The Truman committee should follow the trail. It will uncover gross incompetence or gross corruption. There can be no other explanation.

UNRRA'S READY MADE DRESSES.

The fact that UNRRA is said to be buying better cotton dresses for the women in the liberated countries of Europe than the OPA will allow American women to have is an affront to the American citizens who have to foot the bill, but even so it is only the minor part of the folly. Why is UNRRA buying ready made dresses of any sort?

European women do not, as a rule, wear ready made dresses. The vast majority of them make their own or at least know how to make them. All that UNRRA need do is supply the materials. Still better than materials would be cotton and other fibers on which such textile plants as survive destruction can go to work.

The ready made clothing purchases look suspiciously like lagniappe to the International Ladies Garment Workers union. If the members of that union cannot find sufficient work supplying their normal American market, there are plenty of war plants that can use them.

FINAL SCORE: 2 TO 1.

A dispatch from London says that the three principal allies may shortly set up a sort of super-cabinet to deal with diplomatic questions such as the management of liberated areas and the creation of an international organization to keep the peace. As members of the commission, the names of Ambassador Winant, our official spokesman in London; Ambassador Halifax, Britain's representative in Washington, and Maxim Litvinov, Russia's former commissar of foreign affairs, have been put forward.

Thus Russia will have one representative on the commission and Britain will have two.

Efforts are being made to speed up the work of parliament. Experience has revealed that there is nothing to equal really hot weather in hastening the end of the session.—Toronto Globe and Mail.

NOTES FOR A BIOGRAPHY.

The biographers of the late George Ade have not spoken thus far about his old traveling companion, Ort Welles, but in the early years of this century almost every newspaper mention of the author of "Fables in Slang," when on travel bent, included that name. The old clippings which were filed in newspaper reference rooms have crumbled into pulp-paper dust and disappeared, but the memory of Mr. Welles lingers. To aid modern biographers, who may miss this phase of Ade's life, we will tell the story.

* * *

Ort Welles was Orson Welles I., and uncle of the much-mentioned Orson of Hollywood, who was named after him. He came to Chicago with a large fortune, inherited from a bicycle manufacturing business in Kenosha, Wis., and established himself as a man-about-town and stock market character. He was a popular member of the Chicago Athletic club and other retreats along Michigan avenue where men of money and leisure dined well and killed time, and he and George Ade, then in the first flush of his prosperity, became cronies. Much of Ade's foreign travel, which was extensive, was with Welles as companion, and the ship news reporters of New York frequently paired them, when departing or arriving, in dispatches.

* * *

Ort Welles was a race horse fancier—so much so that he named a horse after his brother Dick. This steed was an active critter on tracks around Chicago, and no doubt George Ade placed many a small bet on his nose. Sportsman Ort seems to have been a plunger at the track and in the stock market, but altho Ade liked to observe the sporting life, he was not inclined to follow his example.

* * *

Soon after Ade's death a Chicago bookshop offered for sale five first editions of his books, autographed as gift copies. They are indorsed, "To Ortie."

TRAVEL BY PROXY.

Unnumbered stay-at-homes who've dreamed
Of travels wide and far,
And thru hard-working lifetimes schemed
Escape from where they are

To strange, sea-fringed Pacific isles
Of coconut and palm,
Where valleys stretch their beautied miles
Green-groved and silence-calm,

Or longed to saunter foreign cities
From Reykjavik to Rome,
And hear the sound of foreign ditties
In tongues unheard at home—

Tho still to tasks and duties tied,
Untraveled dreamers all,
Behold today, sea-long, world-wide,
Obeying battle's call,

Their proxies now by millions go
To the lands they'll never see,
And in their homeward letters, lo,
Make dreams reality! Lister Alwood.

A Well-Remembered Grin.

I walked slowly into the sixth grade room. Every one watched me as I went up to the teacher and I felt my face grow red and hot. The quietness of the room made my voice seem loud as thunder when I said, "The principal sent this." And I gave her a slip of paper.

"This is the new girl," she announced to the class after reading the note. "Sit over there, Norma," she added kindly.

She indicated an empty seat behind a red-haired boy. He turned around and grinned in warm welcome. I immediately liked this curly-haired lad, who, I later discovered, was Red Oliver, the popular boy of the sixth grade. My only memories of grade school center around freckles, red curls, and that smile, the friendliest I've ever known.

I moved away two years later, and altho I never saw him again I've always remembered how much his wide grin meant to me on that first awkward day. I remember it particularly now, because I saw that smile today . . . in a newspaper picture. He was wearing a khaki cap with silver wings, and above the picture was printed, "Killed in action." Neb.

OWL-CAR SOLILOQUY.

The party ended, with regret;
I took her home (it's etiquet)—
Do all blondes live beyond Wilmette?
We saw the circus, as a lark,
I hailed a cab, long after dark;
All redheads live in Rogers Park!

Oft when the last farewell is said
And I'm still far from home and bed
With dawn not very far ahead
I wonder somewhat wistfully
Why no lass ever said to me,
"Why, we both live in Beverly!"

How to Pronounce Pepys—II.

Walter Pepys, a descendant of Samuel the Diarist, has written:

"There have been numerous ways of pronouncing the name, as Peps, Peeps, and Peppis. The Diarist undoubtedly pronounced it Peeps, and the lineal descendants of his sister, Paulina, the family of Pepys Cockerell, pronounce it so to this day. The other branches of the family all pronounce it as Peppis, and I am led to be satisfied that the latter pronunciation is correct."

H. B. Wheatley, in his "Samuel Pepys and the World He Lived In," gives the following:

"The pronunciation of Pepys' name has long been a disputed point, but altho the most usual form at the present day is Peps, there can be little doubt that in his own time the name was pronounced as if written Peeps. The reasons for this opinion are: [1] that the name was sometimes so spelled phonetically by some of his contemporaries; [2] that this pronunciation is still the received one at Magdalene college, Cambridge; and [3] that the present bearers of the name so pronounce it." GAS GANGRENE—A REAL EMERGENCY.

HOW often have we heard the expression, "The operation was successful but the patient died." Perhaps everything was done for the welfare of the sufferer. At any rate, there are scores of precautions which must be observed in the management of wounds.

Every one has been cautioned to beware of lockjaw [tetanus] and many individuals will be safeguarded adequately by vaccination. It is not so easy, however, to ward off the onset of gas gangrene. Nevertheless, this complication is not uncommon.

What is the malady and why is it dangerous? There are three well known causative germs, one of which is named after the late Dr. Welch, its discoverer. Whenever a laceration harbors one of these outlaws, trouble is likely to ensue.

Why is the term "gangrene" used? Simply because the character of the inflammation blocks blood vessels and thus stops nutriment from reaching the cells. In consequence, healing cannot take place. Spreading destruction is the rule.

Symptoms may appear suddenly. Within 12 hours after an injury, the site may become painful. The pulse rate rises and there is usually an increase in fever. Striking characteristics are pallor of the face, restlessness, and insomnia. If the dressings are taken off, a peculiar musty odor may be detected. As the infection progresses, the tissues will become filled with bubbles of gas and—when pressed upon—may give forth a crackling sound. In such circumstances we may well recognize that the patient is dangerously ill. Even the lesion itself will look gray, while the muscles lose their natural shade.

Rule number one is that in the presence of extensive tears, the area should be left exposed to the air. At any rate, the covering should be light so that oxygen may have free access to the parts.

Next, we may utilize antitoxin, not less than ten thousand units. The only risk is from serum sickness. As a rule, however, this will not be serious. We must act quickly and there may not be time to identify the particular species of microbe. The preparation used should be of the type that will neutralize all the culprits.

But it is upon sulfathiazole that we must place our chief trust. This material may be dusted into every crevice. Then comes the complete extirpation of every fragment of tissue that has been cut off from the circulation. It may be well to give one of the sulfa drugs by mouth or even into a vein, until the level in the blood is high enough to produce the maximum effect.

Curative amounts of antitoxin should be very large, possibly 100,000 units, administered during the first 24 hours. Sometimes additional aid will be offered by X-ray exposures. Skilled nursing will contribute much to saving of life and supportive measures must be adopted. Transfusions, adrenal extract, and penicillin may provide real help.

It is not safe to assume that because the preventive dose of antiserum has been given that all other procedures may be neglected. In certain cases, the antidote exerts no influence whatsoever. Far more reliance will need to be placed upon skilled surgery and the sulfa compounds. These infections must be regarded as emergencies, demanding the most expert care.

NO ROUGHAGE.

F. I. writes: Must a person with diverticula remain on a bland diet always?

REPLY.

Not if the outpocketings cause no trouble—do not become inflamed. Excess roughage in the menus should be shunned, however. Tens of thousands of victims are able to pursue a normal existence, without symptoms, by following an average, well balanced diet.

VIOLENT SNEEZING.

S. A. writes: Whenever I sneeze, my back and arms hurt. Can you tell me the reason?

REPLY.

Sneezing is an explosion wherein air is forcibly ejected. This implies a sharp contraction of the thorax and the diaphragm. At the moment, the blood pressure is disturbed. The discomfort you feel is probably a reflex.

ALKALINITY.

Mrs. M. writes: What disease is in the body when the urine is alkaline?

REPLY.

None. You may be perfectly normal. The reaction depends upon the diet, as a rule. When a large quantity of meat is eaten, the urine will be acid. If vegetables and fruits predominate, it probably will be alkaline.

EARLY PEELER.

N. A. writes: I know a housewife who prepares her potatoes early in the morning and lets them soak in cold water until she is ready to cook them for dinner. Doesn't the vegetable become less valuable thru this practice?

REPLY.

The mineral loss will be insignificant.

SKIN ERUPTION.

Mrs. B. writes: I have noticed a lot of red pinhead dots on my back and arms. Is it necessary to see a doctor?

REPLY.

Yes, if they persist. Probably a slight sensitivity, perhaps to clothing. Bathe daily, use a bland soap, and apply talcum generously.

Of All Wars.

[Reprinted by Request.]

Tomorrow the women will go to the cemeteries again. Men will go, too, but there will be more women than men. There always have been, there always will be, for they go to place flowers on the graves of men fallen in battle.

Three years ago we still dared dream there would be no more graves of our men fallen in battle. Three years ago we still placed flowers beside gravestones eroded by the years. This year many of the stones will be fresh and white, and many will be still, small crosses so far away that the flowers we place beside them can only be those of thought, and even more of the flowers will drift out with the waters of stream and river and lake to the unplumbed seas that now harbor so many newly dead.

We can't help wondering what they will do tomorrow down in Columbus, Miss. Columbus is a sleepy, dreamy, beautiful little southern town with a river with the strange name of Tombigbee rolling on one side of it, and a river with the stranger name of Luxapalila twisting on the other side, and the ruins everywhere of old mansions with crystal crosses in the central fireplaces and mournful remains of box hedges inclosing what once were magnificent lawns.

In the sleepy little town with its century-old pin oak and hackberry and junco trees there is a cemetery called Friendship. Once, when incarcerated in a female seminary there, we wandered to it thru lanes of a flowering pink magnolia and labyrinths of heavy purple wisteria, satiny crepe jessamine, and deep coral japonicas. The closer we walked, the softer and more serene the spirit became, for here in Friendship cemetery were 1,440 ancient, crumbling gravestones, many of them sunk deeply into the earth by their weight of years, and from these gravestones came the day we observe tomorrow as Memorial day.

Few of the men in Columbus lived to tell about their days in the army of the Confederacy in the Civil war. Few came home except covered with a tarpaulin in a wagon bed. But from battles near by many came home to Friendship cemetery, so that by the spring of 1866 there were 1,400 graves there of the boys who once wore gray. And 40, as well, of the boys who once wore blue.

Three young women of the town, so goes the story we were told, used to walk out to Friendship every day or so to tend the graves. One day, laden with flowers, they took along the young widow of a Confederate soldier. Later she wrote of that day:

"We had so many flowers, and the other graves were so bare and desolate that I said to my friends, 'Let us drop a flower on each of their graves for their mothers' sakes.'"

This they did, and a few days later, on April 25, the whole town came back. First came young girls in white, bearing flowers. Then came matrons in mourning clothes, bearing flowers. Last came elderly women in carriages laden with flowers. And they strewed them on every grave, the 40 of the Union soldiers first, and then the 1,400 graves of their own.

Soon a New York paper heard of it, and a New York attorney wrote a poem ending:

"Under the sod and the dew
Awaiting the judgment day,
Under the roses the Blue,
Under the lilies the Gray."

So it began.

DOUBTS THOSE GERMAN LETTERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 25.—It is most amazing to me to read that German soldiers in retreat almost always inadvertently leave behind them unmailed letters describing vividly the hopelessness of their position. It is indeed very kind of them to tell us exactly what we would like to believe, to say nothing of the definite military importance of such information. But it doesn't speak very highly for the German censorship, which evidently permits its soldiers to carry on an active campaign well designed to undermine home front morale. In my own experience as an infantry man in a long tough war a comparatively short time ago I never once ran across one of these amazing letters, altho I fought in 15 major engagements and numerous minor ones. Nor did I ever encounter any one who did find such a document. I might add that in our army any one discovered writing such stuff, let alone attempting to pass it on, would have been shot promptly and without much ceremony.

I think we are getting a little too much hooey of this sort in the guise of news. People in general are suffering greatly from illusions about the war which have been fostered by just this type of nonsense. It's high time that we learn we can't just wish our way to victory. Let's have a little less bunk and a little more news. JOE BAKER.

DOG COMRADESHIP.

Lacon, Ill., May 18.—I read with considerable interest this morning about the dog who guarded his slain companion, as I had very much the same experience a few days ago. I live near a school and several dogs go to school with their little masters, playing around the building until school is out.

One day my attention was called to the actions of a dog by the side of my house. A car had hit one of the animals and his playmate was standing over him, pushing him a little until he had him clear up on the green grass from the middle of the road. It took quite a little while as he would stop every minute or two and look in every direction, as much as to say, "Why doesn't some one come and help?" I never saw anything so human. Any other dog, that came near, he would chase away, and he stood watch for some time. FLORENCE PENNIMAN.

STALIN'S FLYING FORTS STAY HOME.

Waukegan, Ill., May 20.—Why hasn't Stalin bombed German cities? Could it be that he wants to be able to say to the German people after the war, that while he fought the German army, his allies attacked their homes, women, and children? F. A. THOMPSON.

NOBODY SEIZED JOHN L.'S UNION.

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—In reporting the investigation of the Ward seizure, which is being conducted by members of a house committee, your good paper this morning quotes excerpts from Atty. Gen. Biddle's testimony which are very interesting indeed.

At one point he said: "Mr. Avery and Mr. Lewis are peculiarly alike in many respects," elaborating that both refused to obey orders from the war labor board, and "neither of them recognizes the government."

After the famous barrister had stuck his neck out that way, is it not peculiar that one of the committee did not think to ask Mr. Biddle why it was that there was such a vast difference between the treatment accorded the two gentlemen under discussion? BENTON C. WATTS.

WHAT THE INTERNATIONALISTS WANT.

Omaha, May 23.—One of the amusing things about this year's campaign is the way some un-American newspapers, including a Chicago publication, are ballyhooing an internationalist for the Republican nomination for President. When the late Mr. Willkie was scratched by the Wisconsin voters these newspapers picked Mr. Dewey.

What they want, of course, is another 1940 campaign with the Republican candidate having the same views as President Roosevelt on foreign affairs and no domestic program at all. Then it will be easy to make the fourth term dream come true.

These political prima donnas make me weary anyway. They want to sit back and wait to be "drafted" when every one knows they want the nomination so much that they can't sleep nights. One would think there is something disgraceful about being honest and saying, as Gov. Bricker is saying, "I am a candidate."

If it were possible to let Mr. Dewey and Mr. Roosevelt out of the Presidential campaign this year the country would be a lot better off. NEBRASKAN.

TWELVE WHEELS TO PLOW UNDER.

Dubuque, Ia., May 23.—Note the following in THE TRIBUNE today from Indianapolis News: "It seems definitely settled that the post-war automobile will have four wheels and will depend upon a motor for power."

SLAYS HIS WIFE; THEN SHOOTS HER SISTER AND SELF

Tragedy Occurs in Wake of Divorce Suit.

Frank Kothanek, 42, of 1928 S. 56th av., Cicero, a precision tool grinder, shot and killed his estranged wife, Katherine, 29, wounded her sister, Mrs. Edna Barnas, 26, and then shot himself yesterday.

The shooting occurred in the Barnas apartment at 5537 Schubert av., where Mrs. Kothanek had been living. She had separated from her husband three weeks ago and subsequently filed suit for divorce, charging cruelty.

'This Is It!' He Shouts.

He pushed Barnas aside, drew a .38 caliber revolver, and ran inside shouting, "This is it!"

Barnas ran upstairs to the apartment of Michael Lachowsky to call police. He heard several shots, and heard his wife scream.

When police arrived, Kothanek was lying on the floor of the entrance hall, a bullet wound below his heart. He is in critical condition in the Bridewell hospital. Mrs. Kothanek was in the living room, 10 feet away.

Shot in Chest, Arm, and Leg.

She had been shot in the chest, the right arm, and leg. She was pronounced dead at Belmont hospital.

Mrs. Barnas was on the floor of the adjoining dining room, with bullet wounds in the left breast, left shoulder, and right knee. She is in Belmont hospital.

The Kothaneks had been married for five years. She was employed by the Western Electric company. Barnas told police that Kothanek has an 8 year old son by a previous marriage.

GUN PLAY ENDS POKER GAME; 1 PLAYER KILLED

Hollywood, Cal., May 28 (AP).—A familiar scene from western movies—gun play at the poker table—was enacted in reality today, leaving one player dead and a bystander wounded.

Slain was Harry Lucenay, 47, film extra and owner of "Pete," the dog with a black-ringed eye, for years a performer in "Our Gang" comedies. Booked on suspicion of murder was Charles Z. Bailey, 71, who said he shot in self defense.

The shooting occurred in the basement of the American Legion club house. Police Capt. Dalton Patton said Bailey gave this account:

The game, for low stakes, had been on all night. By 5 a. m. only three players remained. Bailey won a $5 pot. Lucenay accused Bailey of cheating and approached.

"I knew he was going to beat me up," said Bailey, "so I pulled my gun and shot. He kept coming so I fired again. I didn't intend to kill him."

FATHERS HONOR MAJOR FIGHTING TO AVENGE SON

New York, May 29 (AP).—Maj. Fred D. Conderman of New Bern, N. C., who disobeyed his colonel in the South Pacific to avenge the death of his marine aviator son, today was named fighting father of the year by the national fathers' day committee.

Maj. Conderman.

The major joined the marines when his only son, 2d. Lt. Robert J. Conderman, was killed at Wake Island, Dec. 7, 1941. "I'll make them pay for his life," he said.

Altho ordered by his colonel to remain on board ship when landings were made on Guadalcanal Aug. 7, 1942, Conderman was aboard one of the first landing craft. Operating the postoffice on the island, Maj. Conderman took every opportunity to steal away and shoot Japs. He is now camp mail officer at Camp Le Jeune, N. C.

THE QUESTION.

What would you like to have most as a graduation gift?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Hilde Engert, student, 3639 Ravenswood av.—What I want most for graduation is a date for the senior prom in June. I have a gorgeous dress to wear and everything's all set except for the man. I won't go stag, but more than anything else I want to go because it may be the last time the students will be together.

Joseph Dybal, student, 1740 Beach av.—Right now I couldn't put any civilian articles into use because I'm an aviation cadet in the enlisted reserves. The best gift I could have for graduation would be a commission in the air corps, but I know I'll have to work for that because it won't just be handed to me as a present.

Elaine Schachtschober, student, 3310 N. Kostner av.—I am afraid my tastes run a bit to the expensive side. I would like as a graduation gift enough money to take a course in dramatics. I've always been interested in dramatics and I want to be able to go to school and some day play important parts in stage plays.

Ray Grish, student, 5427 S. Sawyer av.—I've been working and also going to school, and I really feel like a good rest would do me good. I suppose I'm just dreaming, but as a graduation gift I'd like a good long vacation and enough money to go to some resort hotel in Canada and just do nothing but loaf and take it easy.

Hedy Jacobsen, student, 3554 McLean av.—My father is having a graduation party for me. He has rented a hall and we're going to have music, refreshments, and everything that goes with a party. All of my relatives, some whom I have never seen, are coming to my party. That's all I want, and I know we'll have fun.

Margaret Rodgers, student, 1536 W. Marquette rd.—There are so many things I would like to have that it's hard to say. I think there's nothing I would like better than a beautiful necklace that I could wear with everything—not necessarily an expensive necklace, but a good looking one with perhaps a bracelet to match.

NEGRO ADMITS RAPING, KILLING WOMAN IN SOUTH

Texarkana, Ark., May 23 (AP).—The battered body of Mrs. Minnie May Boatwright, 22, was found in a ditch near here early today shortly after a 30 year old Negro co ed, police said, to raping and killing her.

According to police, the Negro went to Mrs. Boatwright's home to talk with her about yard work. The Negro said Mrs. Boatwright asked him if he knew where she might get some blackberries and he replied he would take her in his truck to a patch.

Officers quoted the Negro as saying that about a quarter of a mile down the highway he struck her a blow in the forehead with a club, then hit her twice more, and raped her as she was dying.

WIFE OF SAILOR IN PACIFIC FOUND SLAIN IN STREET

Amarillo, Tex., May 28 (AP).—The almost decapitated body of a woman identified as Mrs. Dorothy Snelson, 22, was found on an Amarillo street today.

Officers speculated the slayer had used a knife to sever the woman's spinal column. They said Mrs. Snelson, wife of R. D. Snelson, who is in the navy in the Pacific, had been living with a brother in Borger.

The victim, mother of two children, had gone to a dance Saturday night and was on her way home when she was slain, police said.

ence must disappear as we join hands in this global war for survival.

"Must Defend Our Government."

"We honor especially today those men and women who in the past were willing to serve and die in such a noble cause. As we stand at their graves we must revitalize our determination to defend our form of government, both at home and abroad.

"We must constantly realize that military victory abroad will lose its potency in the prosecution of the war if we weaken or destroy our representative government at home, or, preserving it, we leave it at the mercy of others in the future. To fight this war to complete victory, to sustain and strengthen our government and formulate a policy that will preserve the sovereign independence of America in fruitful participation with other sovereign nations for future peace present a challenge that we must face with renewed hope and determination."

A demand that Russia guarantee the freedom, immediately upon reconquest, of Poland and other nations was made by William J. Grace, former state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in a speech at Resurrection cemetery in Justice, Ill. Otherwise, he said, the war will be "fought to establish human slavery" rather than for freedom and liberty.

Community observances of Memorial day will continue today and tomorrow.

SLAYER OF RICH WIDOW HAD AID, POLICE BELIEVE

Durham, N. C., May 28 [Special].—Police today expressed belief that more than one person took part in disposing of the heavily weighted body of Mrs. Edward M. Jewett, 67, in Eastwood lake near here. The body of the wealthy widow, formerly of Boonville, Mo., was recovered yesterday by a professional diver, Edward Lewett.

Edward Jewett Martin, 24, grandson of the slain woman, has been indicted by a Durham county grand jury on a charge of murder and is held in jail here.

Police Chief H. E. King asserted it would have been a physical impossibility for any one person to have lifted the weighted body from a small boat without capsizing the boat. The body was weighted with five 25 pound cinder blocks.

Mrs. Jewett was last seen alive in Boonville May 10. She and her grandson had driven there from Charlotte, N. C., and were staying at a Boonville hotel while she attended to business interests.

He said the engine has approximately 3,000 horse power.

JOHN M. MORRISON.

John M. Morrison, 68, veteran of three wars and an ex-newspaper copy boy, marched in his 50th successive Memorial day parade here yesterday. Six service medals across his breast, the veteran took his place with his comrades of the Army of Santiago society.

Morrison, whose name is almost tradition with Chicago newspaper men, served in the Spanish-American, Mexican border wars, and World War I. He entered military service when he joined company A, first regiment of the Illinois National Guard. His early experiences with the National Guard included strike duty in Pana, Ill., and in the Dauphin Park yards of the Illinois Central railroad.

His last newspaper work was with THE TRIBUNE. He retired in 1943 after more than 41 years of service in the newspaper field. He worked for 29 years on the old Chicago Herald and for 11 more on the old Chicago Post.

KENTUCKY VETS BALLOTING LAW FACES LAST TEST

Paris, Ky., May 28 (AP).—Kentucky's legislation to allow its absent service men and women to vote in federal elections, today awaited a final test by the Commonwealth Court of Appeals after the Circuit court here Saturday upheld the enabling act passed by Kentucky's legislature this spring. The enabling act applies to federal elections only and the state, under the act, is to print a special ballot with only the names of candidates for federal office.

Circuit Judge W. B. Ardery disagreed with Atty. Gen. Eldon S. Dummit who contended that the service vote legislation must be invalidated because the constitution of Kentucky specifies that votes must be cast personally and in private.

Ardery declared that the federal Constitution prevails in the case of federal elections. The case was argued before Judge Ardery by Dummit; A. E. Funk, counsel for the secretary of state, and Samuel M. Rosenstein for the American Legion.

Funk contended, and Judge Ardery agreed, that federal law prevails over state law in election of federal congressmen and Presidential electors. The federal Constitution, they said, is the supreme law of the land in regulating federal government, and the Constitution has granted congress supervisory powers over the way, manner, and form of choosing federal officials and Presidential electors. Ardery said the Kentucky legislature was acting as agent of the United States in passing the enabling act.

Judge Ardery complimented Dummit for bringing the test suit. He granted immediate appeal to the Court of Appeals. Dummitt and Funk agreed to ask the court to expedite the appeal.

PACIFIC HEROES FIND PEACE AT TULAGI'S SHRINE

BY SGT. A. M. JOSEPH JR.
[Marine Corps Combat Correspondent.]

TULAGI, Solomon Islands (AP).—Aware of the nearness of Memorial day, I wandered thru Tulagi cemetery. Beneath plain white crosses, lettered in red, lie the first dead of the initial American offensive in this war.

It is almost two years since that first landing here. The men who came ashore and died on the beaches and hillsides were buried at first where they fell. When the island was secured and a plot cleared for the cemetery, their bodies were moved to their present resting places.

A Scene of Vivid Beauty.

Amid the military bustle of Tulagi today, the cemetery is serene and peaceful between rolling green hills. An American flag flies above the crosses, its colors flashing brilliantly against the deep blue sky. Native trees and bushes fringe the cemetery, their flaming scarlet flowers completing a scene of vivid beauty.

The cemetery is cared for by an army sergeant, Clyde E. Smith Jr. of Amesbury, Mass., a veteran of the Guadalcanal and Vella Lavella campaigns. He supervises a dozen or so natives who cut weeds, fill in puddles after rain, and keep the sandy ground sparklingly clean and white.

Shells Mark Paths.

Members of all allied services are buried here. Past their graves are lines of conical shells, carefully placed by the natives as markers for paths.

When there is a funeral these days, there is the chaplain, a bugler, a firing squad, and those members of the deceased's unit able to attend. Rough memorials—inscriptions hammered into mess gear and canteens by the dead man's buddies—are affixed to some crosses.

Visitors are frequent. You see them walking slowly thru the coconut log archway that marks the entrance, and searching quietly for the graves of relatives and friends. The native caretakers in white undershirts and green hip cloths move reverently away. They find new weeds and puffing on briar pipes, continue their work.

Plan Return to U. S.

It is the intention of the navy to take its dead home for burial in the United States when the war is over. Until that time, the men who carried forward the American flag in the first rout of the Japanese will rest in this quiet tropical retreat, beneath the hills and coconut trees where they fell.

In the islands that point to Japan, the men who have taken up their battle are moving on. But the men who began the offensive a year ago last August will not be forgotten this Memorial day.

ROXANA OIL BLAST KILLS ONE.

PALMER WIDOW IN HOSPITAL AS AMNESIA VICTIM

Appeals to Police to Aid in Identification.

Mrs. Jack Moran, widow of Potter D'Orsay Palmer, Chicago heir, was taken to the Psychopathic hospital yesterday after she appealed to Austin police for aid in establishing her identity. Physicians said the attractive 27 year old woman was suffering from amnesia.

In her purse she carried personal cards bearing her new name and newspaper clippings referring to Mrs. Pluma Louise Lowery Abatiello Palmer Struck. However, mention of the name brought no reaction from her, and her identity was not verified until Lt. [j. g.] Nat Ruvell, who was her lawyer in 1940, said she was Palmer's widow.

Wife of George Moran.

Lt. Ruvell said she now is the wife of a son of George [Bugs] Moran, dry era hoodlum. The husband, police said, was missing from their apartment at 3300 Warren blvd., as was his clothing.

At 2:30 a. m. yesterday Mrs. Moran walked into a bowling alley at Madison st. and Austin av. and asked an employe, "Do you know me?" He said he didn't. She left, hired the cab of Harry Riedy, 4222 N. Parkside av., and said she didn't know her own name. Riedy drove her to the Austin station, where she was questioned by Lt. Edward Le Fevour.

Apparently her mind went blank about 9 p. m., Lt. Le Fevour said. She remembered being awakened on a street car by the conductor at Madison st. and Austin av., and then going downtown in "hopes some one would recognize me."

Visit Fails to Aid Her.

Then she returned to the Austin district. Police found her apartment in good order, but a visit there failed to restore Mrs. Moran's memory, they said.

Palmer, grandson of the original Potter Palmers, Chicago society leaders, married the former Pluma Louise Lowery Abatiello, a waitress, in Florida, in December, 1938. He died May 15, 1939. She subsequently sued for a widow's interest in his estate. Later she married Ellsworth Struck of Toledo. She came to Chicago last September, at which time she was separated from him.

EX-SWEETHEART OF YOUNG HAUPT DUE TO TESTIFY

Mrs. Gerda Melind Saure, former sweetheart of Herbert Haupt, executed German saboteur, is expected to testify today at the treason retrial of his father, Hans Max Haupt, before Judge John P. Barnes and a jury in federal District court.

Mrs. Saure, who lives at 1631 Chase av., is no stranger to court procedure. She testified two years ago before the military tribunal that condemned Herbert Haupt and five accomplices to death. She also testified at the first trial of Hans Haupt. She appeared as a defense witness for Herbert Haupt, but as a government witness against Hans. If she appears again today, she again will be a government witness.

United States Atty. Woll indicated that witnesses would be placed before the jury as expeditiously as possible. There will be no session tomorrow, Memorial day. If possible, the government will rest its case Wednesday.

LIQUOR KILLS 6; WOMAN HELD ON HOMICIDE COUNT

New York, May 28 (AP).—A 31 year old housewife, Mrs. Sophie Krisuinas, was charged with homicide today as a sixth Brooklyn man died from drinking what police believe was poison liquor.

The latest victim was Victor Filipkowski, 58. Contents of a bottle of liquor found near the body were sent to city toxicologists for analysis. Five men died yesterday.

Mrs. Krisuinas wept when arraigned in felony court before Magistrate Charles Solomon who held her without bail. Police said Mrs. Krisuinas had admitted selling 15 bottles of alcoholic beverage since last Tuesday. They reported finding a 15 gallon tank full of denatured alcohol and 30 gallons in bottles in her home.

CHICAGO CZECHS HONOR BENES ON 60TH BIRTHDAY

Chicago Czechs paid tribute to Dr. Eduard Benes, president of the exiled Czechoslovakian government, now in London, yesterday on his 60th birthday anniversary. More than 3,000 persons attended the ceremony in Pilsen park, 26th st. and Albany av.

Copy of a cablegram sent to Dr. Benes was read by Dr. J. E. Vojan, master of ceremonies. It predicted that Dr. Benes, who "gave the Czechoslovakian government its independence," will return "to Prague as renovator of Masaryk's republic and its democracy."

Julius Fuerth, a member of the Czechoslovak state council, declared that his government felt deep appreciation for the "generous help tendered it by the American people." Other groups which took part in the ceremony were the Croatians, represented by Joseph Bazdarich; Ukrainians, Mrs. Helen Lotoshynska, and the Poles, Frank Sliwa.

National dances and choruses were presented. Monna Van, of the Chicago Civic Opera company, was soloist. The program closed with singing of the Czech song, "Hail, Slavs."

RESCUE YOUTH AS HE CLINGS TO PIER OF BRIDGE

Crowds lining the Illinois Central railroad bridge over the Kankakee river near downtown Kankakee yesterday saw John Sollo, 20, of 848 Main st., rescued from going over the dam onto the rocks below.

Sollo, who tried to row across the swollen river, got into trouble in midstream. The current drove his boat on toward the waterfall. Sollo lost an oar and splintered the other as he paddled to get beyond the rapid water.

As he passed a bridge pier, he dived overboard, then swam to the next pier and clung to it. He cried for help. Finally rescuers dropped him a rope and pulled him out.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Ben Markland

May 28, 1944.

THE last 10 days have been blue ones for the farm people, not as a result of any losses or catastrophes, but because of the preponderance of blue and purple flowers in the woodlots, along the lanes, and around the farm cottages.

The blue wood phlox retains its place as the most striking wildflowers in the oak woodlots, but it is nearing the end of its season. Wild geraniums, which are light blue-purple in color, rather than the bright red of garden geraniums, are abundant this season, and are succeeding the phlox as the most numerous wildflowers in the woods and along the roadsides.

Lilacs Helped by Rains.

Additional splotches of blue are provided by the Jacob's ladders, which, like the phlox, are about ready for 1944 retirement, and around every farm home the lilacs still provide many shades of blue and purple. One of the farm yards has more than 30 varieties of lilacs, and the cool and rainy weather has helped them retain their blossoms thru a long period this season.

The hiking fan who likes to see a great number of wildflowers with a minimum loss of shoe leather could well select late May as his woodlot walking period. In a 20 minute hike thru the center woodlot of the Wheaton farm last week, we found 13 wildflowers in various stages of bloom. These included the wood phlox, shooting stars, wild geraniums, false Solomon seal, anemones, mandrakes, Jacob's ladder, Jack-in-the-pulpits, trilliums, violets, wild strawberry, wild mustard, and goatsbeard.

Goatsbeard May Be Pest.

This last named plant is becoming more common each season thruout Chicagoland. Altho it now has the rank of wildflower, it may become a pest, if it follows the traits of its plant relative, the common dandelion. It has a yellow flower like the dandelion, but differs in that its flower is borne on a tall stem that reaches a height of 12 to 24 inches.

The goatsbeard is common now in vacant lots, along railroads, and in the waste areas beside highways.

Most attractive flowering tree in the farm arboretum now is the Bechtel's crab, which has large multi-petaled pink blossoms that compare favorably with those of the rambler rose.

★ The GARDEN ★

THE "rule of four" is a standard guide to the planting of cucumbers, summer squash, and muskmelons in gardens that have the room for these crops. Because of the amount of space required, none of these three is practical in small gardens; in plots containing at least 2,000 square feet they can be planted on a limited scale.

The rule of four refers to the spacing of cucumber, summer squash, and melon hills. These should be at least four feet apart, with four feet between rows. In larger gardens, five feet each way is the recommended planting distance. The term summer squash refers to the smaller types, especially crooknecks, Acorn Table Queen, and scallops, which mature in 55 to 85 days. The larger winter squash, such as the Hubbard, require 115 days for maturity, and should be planted in hills eight feet apart.

All of these warm weather crops can be planted now in well fertilized hills.

BOY, 11, DROWNS IN I-M CANAL; BROTHER SAVED

Edward Rossi, 11, of 3024 Flournoy st., drowned yesterday when he and his brother, Daniel, 12, fell from a raft while they were fishing in the Illinois-Michigan canal near 39th st. and Cicero av.

Their father, Otto, 51, who was fishing nearby, rushed to their aid as the boys floundered helplessly in five feet of water and sank before he could reach them.

A fire rescue squad under Lt. Aloysius Bauer resuscitated Daniel, but Edward could not be revived. The firemen worked over him for 45 minutes while the brothers were being taken to County hospital.

CAPITAL CHAFES OVER EXPENSE OF SEDITION TRIAL

Washington, D. C., May 28.—With court room costs alone piling up at the staggering rate of approximately $100 per day, Washington taxpayers were wishing tonight that the justice department would hurry up and finish the trial of the 29 alleged Nazi collaborationists.

In addition to being greatly distressed by the bad name the disorderly proceedings of the sedition trial are giving American courts of justice and the legal profession, the Washington taxpayers were dismayed to learn today that they are to bear 60 per cent of the trial costs.

The trial, now going into its seventh week with only the barest of preliminaries completed, may last anywhere from three months to two years, attorneys have predicted.

Costs Mount Higher.

Cost of the proceedings has been placed all the way from $100,000 to more than a million dollars.

Court attendants estimate that the cost of lighting, aircooling, and operating the court room, providing extra marshals to maintain order, and other incidentals now averages $100 per day, or $400 per week for the four-day-a-week sessions.

And this does not include government attorney fees, witness fees, and the hundred and one other items that must be totaled in trial expenses.

Rep. Karl Steffan [R., Neb.], member of the house subcommittee in charge of District of Columbia appropriations, termed these costs "decidedly unfair and most unequitable."

Seeks Money for Lawyers.

He said he planned to investigate and see if some way couldn't be provided to pay some fees to the 16 court appointed attorneys in the case, who now get nothing.

It was recalled that at a meeting of the bar association of the District of Columbia recently to discuss this matter it was reported that the federal courts for the district had turned in $87,000 to the federal treasury last year. Described as the courts' "net profit," the fund was obtained from fines, forfeited bail bonds, etc. For the same period the Municipal courts of the District of Columbia turned over $899,000. It was suggested at that time that the lawyers might be paid with some of this money.

SEIZED IN CHURCH AFTER THROWING EGGS AT ALTAR

New York, May 28 (AP)—A special mass being celebrated by Archbishop Francis Spellman in St. Patrick's cathedral was interrupted today by a man who threw two eggs toward the altar. The eggs smashed against the fore part of the altar.

The man attempted to run from his seat in the third pew but was captured by members of the congregation. At the police station he was booked on a disorderly conduct charge as Frank Hahnl, 52. Police said they found two more eggs in his pocket.

Hahnl said he was a Czechoslovakian and a Catholic, and explained his act by saying:

"I just felt that way."

How to get Twice as Many Free Red Points for your Used Fats

Clip this check list now. Pin it up in your kitchen and save fats from all these suggested sources. You'll turn in twice as much—and get yourself twice as many free red points! Used fats are urgently needed to make munitions, battlefield medicines and other vital materials. So help yourself—and help our boys at the same time.

1 SAVE the bits of fat you trim from roasts, chops, and other cuts. Once a week, melt them down when the oven is on.

2 SCRAPE the roaster, broiling pan, and frying pan. The grease is never too black or too smelly to be wanted.

3 SKIM stews, soups, and gravies as they cook. Chill them afterwards and scoop off the fat that congeals on top.

4 SAVE the water in which you cook hot dogs, sausages, and ham. Chill it and scoop off the fat.

5 SAVE scraps of fat on plates. Melt them down with the meat trimmings.

6 KEEP the can (any tin can will do) on the back of the stove where it's handy. When the can is full, take it to your butcher and get 2 free red points and 4¢ for every pound. Start today! It's such a little thing to do—it means so much to them!

Helen Niblack Is Engaged to Ensign Lyle

BY JUDITH CASS.

Of wide interest is the announcement made over the week-end by Mr. and Mrs. Austin H. Niblack of Lake Forest of the engagement of their daughter, Helen Cudahy, to Ensign William Gordon Lyle Jr., of the naval reserve, son of Dr. and Mrs. Lyle of New York. The wedding will take place early this summer.

Miss Niblack, who was introduced to society in 1942, was educated at the Foxcroft school, and is an accomplished horsewoman, sharing her parents' enthusiasm in that sport. She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy and of the late Mr. and Mrs. William C. Niblack, and has a younger brother, Albert Parker Niblack.

Ensign Lyle is a graduate of St. Paul's and of Harvard university, class of '43. He is stationed at the naval reserve training school at Northwestern university.

Also making plans for a summer wedding are Miss Frances Len Welborn and Ensign John Harold Perkins, of the naval reserve, whose engagement is being announced today by Miss Welborn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis R. Welborn of Winnetka. Ensign Perkins is the son of Harold Reed Perkins and the late Mrs. Perkins, of Evanston.

The wedding will take place the latter part of June either in Miami, Fla., where Ensign Perkins is stationed, or in Winnetka, if he is able to get leave. Miss Welborn is a junior at Northwestern university, from which her fiance was graduated with honors last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter R. Wiseman of Greeley, Col., announce the engagement of their daughter, Aileen, to William Van Horne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard B. Van Horne of Indiana Harbor, Ind. The wedding will take place on June 29 in Bond chapel at the University of Chicago, from which Miss Wiseman will receive her Ph. B. degree next month. Mr. Van Horne attended Yale and the University of Chicago.

Here and There.

Chicago's town clubs are divided 50-50 between those remaining open thruout the summer months and those which are closing. The Woman's Athletic club, the Racquet, and the Tavern, which will be doing "business as usual" straight thru the summer, are expecting a rush of guests during the Republican and Democratic conventions in June and July.

The 20 attractive bedrooms at the Woman's Athletic club will be available to members and their guests for rest periods during the busy days to come, altho the club never takes overnight guests. As an innovation the club will be closed this year from Aug. 18 until the day after Labor day.

Anticipating the coming convention rush, the Tavern has decreed "no guest cards from June 18 to July 25." During this period members will be limited to five guests on any visit to the club, and military members will be allowed one guest.

The Casino will be closed from June 12 until fall, and the Arts club from the evening of June 15 until Oct. 1. The Fortnightly is preparing for its summer siesta, and the organizations which it houses—the Fortnightly, the Friday, and the Contemporary clubs—already have held their last meetings until fall.

The Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind has announced the recent election of Mrs. Arthur G. Leonard jr. of Wilmington, Ill., as president of the society. Mrs. Leonard succeeds Mrs. Marshall Keig. Other new officers are Mrs. John E. Baker and Mrs. David A. Crawford, vice presidents; Mrs. John Grant McDonald and Mrs. Paul M. Godehn, secretaries; Mrs. Dorothy Buttolph Clarke, treasurer, and Mrs. Walter L. Mead, assistant treasurer.

Dr. and Mrs. F. Patrick Machler of Evanston are celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary today in Sea Island, Ga., where they are on a holiday.

On the Calendar.

Women students who will enter Beloit college next fall will be welcomed at a tea which the college and alumnae of the Chicago area will give at the Chicago College club from 3 to 5 p. m. June 10. Miss Valerie Wickhem, president of the Beloit club of Chicago, and director of admissions at the college, is in charge of the tea. Some of the alumnae who will be pouring are Mrs. Charles M. Bacon, Mrs. William M. Hales, Mrs. George Fraser, Mrs. Harry J. Reiss, Mrs. Paul Richmond, and Mrs. Knox Burno.

The annual spring luncheon of the Radcliffe club of Chicago will be held at 1 p. m. next Saturday in the Winnetka home of Mrs. Walter T. Fisher.

The Walter R. Howells are entertaining at dinner at home tonight for their daughter, Miss Florence Howell, who is to be graduated from the Girls' Latin school next Saturday. Miss Howell, who is of debutante age, will enter Pine Manor in the fall.

The Roycemore school commencement will be held at 11 a. m. on June 9, with the Rev. Clifford H. Newham as speaker. The sophomore prom will be held on June 10 in the gymnasium.

The commencement exercises of the Ferry Hall school will be held June 9 to 12. A concert and faculty reception will be held the evening of the 9th; the alumnae association meeting, commencement luncheon and commencement dance will be held on the 10th; the baccalaureate service will be read by the Rev. Joseph Haroutunian of McCormick Theological seminary at 5 p. m. on the 11th in the school chapel, and seniors will receive their diplomas the morning of the 12th, when John Ulric Nef of University of Chicago will be the speaker.

White Collar GIRL

Calendar Complaint.

This is a day, at best, too long;
O, Monday is blue when it comes this way
'Twixt week-end and a holiday!

SALLY.

Telephone Manners.

I am a switchboard operator for a grain brokerage firm in the Board of Trade building. Instead of answering either by the number or the firm name I always say "good morning" or "good afternoon." To me it seems more courteous and makes the person calling feel friendly towards the company. As a matter of fact I feel differently toward other switchboard operators who answer with a greeting than I do toward those who give the number and seem to me to be just plugging in, rattling off a number, and ringing the extension.

My own board is a very busy one, but I have discovered that a cheerful greeting helps those who otherwise might not wait patiently on the line for me. As a result I have never been reprimanded for keeping any one waiting.

Switchboard operators are sellers for the company. They are not just on the job from 9 to 5. They have no reason to be bored with their jobs and, believe me, many do sound bored. When a man calls a firm for the first time and is given a cheerful, courteous greeting, he will call back—and the operator has done a good job of selling the company to the customer. JEANIE.

Warm Holiday to Bring Out Crisp Cottons

BY REA SEEGER.

Assortments of country clothes, colorful, fresh, and crisp, are now complete. Cottons, undeniably the best of the summer crop, because they'll tub each week and yet stay richly colored all summer, are plentiful. This first summer holiday will bring them out like a strawberry rash. You can find dotted, checked, and striped cottons, in ginghams, and butcher's linen, in smooth shirtings, and in gay printed chintz and seersuckers, altho the last mentioned fabric is almost as scarce as silk.

Versatile cotton suits and coat dresses claim the most attention. These are trim tailored models, many to be worn as suit dress costumes, most of them with cool elbow length sleeves in the jacket and with skirts extremely simple in a four gore formation. They're to be found in white and half inch checks in cool blue and white, green, red, or brown and white, and contrasts of solid shades in the skirt, teamed with jackets of print.

Play clothes are brilliant in pattern and contrast. The sleeveless jumpers and the pinafore dress apron are by far the most popular models. Pinafores have clever built up tops or the more open back and exposed shoulders for sun tanning. Buttoned down the front or back, they are the easiest summer dresses to slide into. Wrap around sleeveless dresses come in light and dark summer colors such as copper, cypress green, black, and navy. A few in white and pastel are stitched with effective contrast thread such as red, blue, or green with light background.

Pilgrim Baptist Choir and Soloist Please in Concert

It was an unexpected pleasure to go to Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon for the 10th music festival of the Pilgrim Baptist church's senior choir, and find La Julia Rhea its guest artist. A celebrated Negro Aida, Miss Rhea has an uncommonly beautiful dramatic soprano, with some of the plangent richness that made Rosa Raisa famous, and a velvety mezza voce reminiscent of the late Claudia Muzio. Her singing of "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio" was distinguished Verdi, a sensitive performance that needed only a more brilliant climax to rank with the best.

The choir of 150 voices, its white and black robes in sharp contrast on the big stage, sang with the freshness that comes only from delight in singing, but in the first half of the concert, that singing suggested more possibilities than its leaders were able to exploit. Instead of concentrating on the good qualities of tone and rhythm, the program strained the choir's resources with elaborate arrangements from Mascagni, Verdi, and Rossini. Even so, the most extraordinary arrangement of the afternoon was Gruen's of a MacDowell Polonaise, with which Ione Monroe Trice and Goldie Guy Martin were able to make two pianos sound like one tinkling music box.

Premature is a mild word to describe Rosalie Saalfeld's recital at Kimball hall last night. Somewhere in that wild welter of inaccurate song was a voice worth saving. But Miss Saalfeld has a gift for singing off pitch that would put Beatrice Lillie to shame. I stuck it out thru Mozart's "Alleluia" and a Veracini Pastorale, convinced that somehow it was my fault, but after the Mad Scene from "Lucia" I fled dismayed into the night. C. C.

New Lipstick Is Versatile

Thru the Looking Glass

Not the first, but one of the nicest of the spring lipstick shades is a radiant rose. We can remember—and it isn't so long ago—when a new shade was launched every day at the change of the seasons; now, as part of its conservation program, the cosmetic industry is sticking to a few shades, with all the emphasis on wearability.

This shade, we think, is wonderfully wearable. It represents the greatest makeup good for the greatest number of women because there are no trying, tricky undertones in its flaming depths, and it can be worn with success by women of almost any coloring no matter what the spring and summer costume shade. In all honesty we must say it might not be spectacularly successful with some of the muted winter shades, but we can see it helping many a feminine face bloom above the dead white and the clear colors of summer. It's as pure a rose tint as the makers could devise, and they have assiduously avoided undertones that range toward the yellow or the blue.

This is a de luxe lipstick, product of a house that makes ultra-smart preparations for the women who like style and snazziness. Its case is of the conversation-piece school; it's plastic, in dark violet with a brilliant decorative design created by one of the most talked about of modern painters. It's a swivel stick, with a trick contraption at the base that locks the stick well. You may have learned the hard way by ownership of a swivel lipstick that wouldn't swivel, as it were, that this design sometimes isn't too satisfactory in plastic. However, this new case seems to be the answer to the problem of this bit of mechanics in plastic. It works perfectly.

It's fun, this case, and the lip rouge itself is lovely.

Placing Agency Tells Need for Baby Buggies

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

From a child placing agency:

"How is the baby buggy situation these days? Our agency has found it necessary to assume responsibility for more than 25 newly born babies in the last two months. Most of them have been placed in foster homes where many of the mothers are boarding babies for the first time in the service of our agency. A number of these women do not have buggies, and we would be very glad to have any available carriages to place with those families who are being so helpful in caring for dependent infants. If you can find any for us anywhere in the city, we will be very happy to call for them."

Miss M., a case worker for an agency, has requested assistance for a family living on the northwest side. It consists of a young man, his wife, and a baby 6 months old. They have been self-supporting until recently, when the father was hospitalized because of an obscure ailment. His wife and baby had been living with relatives because of their lack of income during the illness, but that will no longer be possible. The agency in trying to assist them in finding a home and has requested our assistance in obtaining furniture. A bed is their only possession, and living room furniture, bedding, a kitchen table and chairs, kitchen utensils, a dresser, a baby bed, and a carriage are needed. Offers from the northwest side of the city will be preferable in order to save on the cost of transportation. The agency will arrange for cartage.

Woman's Aid Plans Evening Party for the Blind on June 8

Because so many blind persons are working in defense plants, the Chicago Woman's Aid is making its 21st annual party for the blind an evening affair instead of the usual day time picnic. Thursday night, June 8, is the date of the party, which will be held in the Aid clubrooms on the 15th floor of the Medical Arts building, 185 N. Wabash av. There will be dancing, community singing, and music by an orchestra of blind musicians. Any blind person needing transportation is asked to call Mrs. E. A. Feldman, chairman of arrangements, at Superior 8500, or the office of the Chicago Woman's Aid.

"THE BLACK PARACHUTE."

A Columbia picture, directed by Lew Landers, featuring Larry Parks, John Carradine, Osa Massen, and presented at the Oriental.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

This is one of the choice program "underground" thrillers. It has an engrossing story and is graced by excellent acting—notably that of young Larry Parks, whom I'm sure you will remember favorably from his work in "Hey, Rookie."

Larry is a newcomer, and I have it from a neighbor of his mother that "he has worked very hard to attain his position in the movie world." Which I believe, for he has assurance that could come only from experience or intelligent concentration on the business at hand. He is handsome. He is natural. He is intuitive. He is swell and I wish him luck.

In "The Black Parachute" he is seen as a newspaper correspondent, who comes to the rescue of the captive king of Starslava and his country. Frequent broadcasts, supposedly by King Stephen, urge Starslavians to give support to the Nazis . . . The king's own people are confident the broadcaster is a fake—but the radio messages are raising the devil with other beleaguered countries . . . SO——young Michael Lindley who had been all set to return to America and enlist, is persuaded to take over the job of freeing the king and removing the menace of the broadcasts . . .

What happens, you should see!

John Carradine shines as the Nazi general. So does Osa Massen as a mysterious charmer Michael meets while on his mission . . .

More I could tell you of the story, but not without robbing you of pleasurable suspense, so, said she stylishly, I desist.

St. Luke's Episcopal church, Evanston, generally recognized as one of the country's outstanding ecclesiastical edifices, was dedicated yesterday by Bishop Wallace E. Conkling as a memorial to the late Bishop George Craig Stewart, the church's builder. The ceremony had awaited the liquidation of all indebtedness for many years. It followed ancient procedures, including the knocking at the door of the edifice by Bishop Conkling.

Admission by church authorities, including the rector, the Rev. Frederick L. Barry, who had cleared a debt of nearly $100,000 during his three year rectorate, meant that title to the edifice during the service would become vested forever in the person of the bishop of Chicago.

Bishop Wallace J. Gardner of New Jersey preached the sermon with the Rev. Mr. Barry the celebrant at the dedication eucharist. Bishop Stewart began the construction of the edifice in 1906, with additional sections added from time to time during the succeeding 25 years prior to his election as bishop of Chicago. A tower remains to be built. When this is done the church will represent an investment of about 1 million dollars. Bishop Stewart, who died in 1940, is buried there.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 28.—William Bendix will visit "Duffy's Tavern" in the picture. So will Sonny Tufts. In the meantime Sonny is whipping out a song with Joe Lilly, who wrote the music for "Jingle Jangle Jingle" in half an hour. . . . Kenneth MacGowan's second picture at Paramount will be "El Dorado," a western which he says is "Lifeboat" in a stagecoach junction, laid in the '70s. . . . Travis Banton has signed to do costumes for Danny Kaye's "The Wonder Man," which will have Rosalind Russell crying in her tea. She won't make a picture without Travis. . . . George Brent is introducing June Milland at Jim Dolan's supper club as his next bride. . . . Nice teaming—Nina Mae McKinney in "Dark Waters" with Rex Ingram. Welcome back, Nina! . . . It's hard to believe the Edward G. Robinsons are rowing. That's always seemed such a happy marriage.

One for the Army.

I note that the boys coming out for "Winged Victory" will be "tented" and live under army regulations at Santa Monica. Does that mean their wives, who are going to be in the picture, will share a tent with them? Or do they find their own quarters? George Cukor, director of the picture, is getting the facts about flying from Bob Cummings, who has turned out his sixth class of pilots at Mira Loma. . . . Cornelia Otis Skinner, chewing the fat with Victor Borge, said she dropped the French word "diseuse" after seeing this in a Scotch newspaper: "Cornelia Otis Skinner, American disease, gave a program last night." Peggy Diggins, married to a New York army doctor stationed in England, lives with his parents at their palatial Virginia estate. She expects her baby in September. Remember when Warners tried to make her a star?

His Horses Need It.

Bing Crosby's luck is fantastic. Even his mother admits he's got a horseshoe 'round his neck. In "Going My Way," he wears the sweatshirt of the St. Louis Browns, which has been a joke baseball team for years, but this spring, just as the picture came out there, they were high up in the American league—one of the few times in the memory of the oldest human. . . . This month Nigel Bruce celebrated his 10th year here, 23d wedding anniversary, and his 15th picture, "House of Fear." . . . Jane Powell, the 14 year old who made her debut on Hollywood Showcase and starred in "Song of the Open Road," instead of waiting in the New York station for photographers to come and take the usual corny pictures, went right to the service men's center in the depot and asked for the boys. . . . What a laugh Betty Grable and Dick Haymes will have when Gregory Ratoff, Otto Preminger, and Ernst Lubitsch play themselves in "Diamond Horseshoe." Bet they'll insist upon directing themselves.

Whirling Dervishes.

Count that day lost when Olsen and Johnson don't put over another gag. Their latest to me was beautifully done up. When I unwound it, there were over-sized bedsheets with a huge drawing of Olsen on one and Johnson on the other, and this written in red: "Deer Heda, just so you can go to bed between us every night, luv, Ole and Chick." The sheets are now hanging in my office to startle the janitor. Another trophy which handed me a giggle is a native hat sent by Pat Nearney from the South Pacific. I really look like a Zulu in this one. . . . A telephone call from a private in Mississippi told me Martha O'Driscoll is his pinup girl.

Headline Stuff.

Some time ago Warners had William Faulkner write a screen play of Gen. De Gaulle's life. When the political stew got to boiling, Warners dropped the idea, even tho they'd already spent nearly $100,000 on it. De Gaulle got a hunk of the money. Now that De Gaulle's on the front pages again, I'm told Warners have dusted off the script and are going full speed ahead. They hope the picture will be finished in time for the invasion, so that they can cash in as they did on "Casablanca." . . . I expect there'll be a traffic jam on Hollywood boulevard when James Melton drives up in front of my office to take me riding in his Stanley steamer. If there isn't, we're both going to be disappointed. . . . England made a picture of "Gaslight," starring Diana Wynward, but it followed the play too closely and was never released over here.

West Moves East.

Reginald Owen, when he winds up "National Velvet," is going east to produce his own play, "The Nose Rub." United Artists is putting up the money for Ilka Chase's play "In Bed We Cry," which will star her. If the play runs 20 weeks on Broadway, they'll star Ilka in the picture. In the meantime she's a mighty sick girl. . . . Hunt Stromberg rescued Robert Montgomery from the cocktail shaking set in "Night Must Fall." He's doing the same thing for Anne Baxter in "Guest in the House," which deals with pathological people. . . . Gosh! Harry James is taking his ex-wife trouble to court. It seems for two and one-half years she's been getting 36 per cent of the net profits, on which he paid the taxes. Now there's been a tax refund to him and she asks $17,000 more. He'll let the judge decide. . . . The other night after Jose Iturbi's sister and a violinist finished playing at Naval hospital in Corona, a marine raider patient, who lost an arm in New Georgia, came on the stage to congratulate them. Said the marine wistfully, "I know it was good. I used to play the violin." Noting his missing left arm, Miss Iturbi, without a moment's hesitation remarked, "O, and now you are a conductor."

SYNOPSIS: Joseph Higgins, postman, delivers seven letters accepting service in Heron's Park military hospital, from Gervase Eden, Jane Woods, Esther Sanson, Dr. Moon, Dr. Barnes, Frederica Linley and Nurse Marion Bates. Within a year, one of the writers of these letters will die, a self-confessed murderer. Dr. Eden tires of his flirtation with Sister Bates. It's love at first sight when Dr. Barnes sees Frederica. During an air raid, Esther remains on duty to help Frederica. Joseph Higgins is brought in with a fractured femur, and Esther looks after him. A second victim arrives. During the booth to see Freddi. He is followed by Dr. Eden, who kisses her. Sister Bates, finding him in the booth, creates a scene. To protect Freddi, Woods lures Gervase into a flirtation. Esther takes Higgins to the operating theater. Dr. Barnes gives the anesthetic, under which Higgins dies. The night Higgins was admitted to the hospital, a masked figure took the key to the operating theater from its hook. Inspector Cockrill asks Dr. Barnes to demonstrate his anesthetizing apparatus. At a hospital party, Sister Bates declares she has proof of the murder and goes to the operating theater to get it. She is found there, by Woods, murdered. Inspector Cockrill summons six persons—Dr. Moon, Dr. Eden, and Dr. Barnes; Woods, Freddi and Esther. None has an alibi. The murderer took two grains of morphia from the poison cupboard. All six have some morphia tablets. As Cockrill outlines his idea of the killing, Esther becomes hysterical. Next morning, before reporting for duty, Esther closes the window to keep the room warm for Freddi, who is unable to open it.

INSTALMENT XXV.

FREDERICA OVERCOME.

Esther's hands were beautiful, small and narrow, with tapering fingers, but rough work and hard water had chafed and stained them, and, with all her care, the nails were broken and blunt. "I'm ashamed of them," she said, putting them behind her back.

"You should be proud. They got that way in a very good cause."

"Well, I suppose so, but—look! A hideous great scar where I burned my finger last week, and a bruise on my wrist, and a horrible black stain round my thumbnail. . . . I used to keep them looking so lovely and now they're just a disgrace; my poor hands!"

"Could you take them very quickly somewhere else?" said William, abruptly.

She stared at him in astonishment. "Why on earth?"

"I'm seized with an irresistible desire to kiss them," said the fractured tib. and fib. "And I'm afraid you might not be pleased. . . ."

She would not have been pleased, and she picked up her bottle of meths. and walked hurriedly away; but a small, bright ember began to glow very warmly in the depths of her desolate heart.

At a quarter to 11 she made an excuse to the sister and, hanging her outdoor coat over her shoulders, ran across the grounds to the cottage, where Freddi would be in bed upstairs. At the door she paused and sniffed; in the sitting room she paused and sniffed again; and a moment later she was running up the narrow stairs.

Frederica lay on the little bed. Her short, heavily curling hair was spread over the pillow in a network of deep gold, her face was scarlet, her arms flung up over her head, the fingers tightly clenched. There was strong, choking, sickly smell of gas.

Cockrill sent for Miss Woods. "I want you to come down to the cottage with me. Miss Linley's too ill and Esther Sanson is sleeping off gas and shock. Can you get away from your operating theater for half an hour?"

"I dare say it'll manage to stagger along," said Woody, who was, in fact, off duty.

They walked together across the rough grass, under the tall, bare trees and along the drive to the gate; a strapping, deep bossomed woman, and a little brown old man in a droopy macintosh and a perfectly enormous hat. "I must have picked up my sergeant's by mistake," said Cockie, irritably, pushing it up from over his eyes for the fifth time.

Woods looked about her, at the bomb scarred landscape and the blast pitted buildings where she and a hundred other women were voluntarily spending the days of their service to their country; at the fields, pitted with craters, at the gaunt white limbs of the trees broken down by a bomb the night before. Six months of it. Six months of it, day and night, almost incessantly, and in all that time she had not known the meaning of fear; had not seen in the faces about her, the faces of middle aged women or young girls, a shadow of panic or failure or endurance-at-an-end. She smiled outright and said with a lift of her strong black eyebrow: "O, yes; we're a bunch of cowards, there's no doubt of that."

Cockie had followed her glance. "You can take the blitz in your stride; but a couple of unexplained deaths, and you all get the jitters."

"'Unexplained' is the operative word," said Woody, coolly. "Personally, I'm much more petrified of the blitz on the nights that it doesn't come; once it's there, it's there, but I don't like the uneasy waiting for it to begin; and I don't like waiting to be murdered—or to have my friends murdered."

"What makes you think they may be?" said Cockrill.

"Two successful murders, one attempted one, and somebody running around with two grains of morphia in their pocket," said Woody, briefly. "Here's our slum—the one this end, nearest the gate."

"I'm not grumbling. I haven't got a word to say against it. But I thought you might be a bit surprised and I was being the complete hostess."

"It depends what you're used to, I suppose," said Cockie.

"Well, I'm used to a streamlined flat in town," said Woody, abruptly.

"O, are you? Town bred girl, eh?"

"Mostly," said Woods.

"I see. I only wondered," said Cockie; "because there were some people of your name living in these parts once."

"My father did have a house down here once, ages ago, when we were—when I was a child."

"Well, actually—I mean that was ages ago, when I was a child, of course; but they lived here till four or five years ago."

"I see," said Cockie again. "Quite a short age, really. And where are your parents now?"

"They're dead," said Woody.

"Let's have a look at the meter," said Cockrill.

She opened a cupboard door. "Here it is. . . . Good Lord, somebody seems to have been dusting it. It hasn't looked so clean for months."

"My sergeant has been going over it for fingerprints," said Cockrill. "He always clears up after himself."

He examined the meter carefully. "I see that there's six shillings in here," he said, peering at the little dials. "Would that be about right, do you know?"

Woods considered this, muttering calculations to herself. "Me and then Freddi and then Esther, and twice three's six, but last week Freddi put in two. . . . Yes, that's right; we put in the shillings in, turn, and it was Esther's turn this time."

"It boils down to this, that nobody but yourselves has put any money in the meter since it was last cleared?"

"No such luck," said Woods.

A new ready prepared muffin mix has been developed by a company already known for its popular baking mixes. The muffin mix needs only the addition of water, a few stirs with a spoon for blending, and the batter is ready for the oven. For variation, the muffins can be baked with a dab of jelly on top; flavored with orange juice and grated rind, then dusted with sugar for afternoon tea; filled with raisins or currants, or made into pinwheel rolls filled with brown sugar, butter, or margarine, chopped nuts and cinnamon. They're delicious any way you try them!

According to figures gleaned in a recent consumer survey, about 84 per cent of the homemakers questioned used printed recipes in preparing meals for their families. The other 16 per cent evidently relied on their memories or followed the trial and error method. Almost 37 per cent of the women had never known the satisfaction of owning a cook book. We're happy to know that so many persons do find printed recipes taken from newspapers and magazines helpful, but we also advise every homemaker to have at least one good general cook book on hand for ready reference. My department will be glad to recommend several excellent cook books to any readers who may be interested.

To keep melted chocolate from sticking to the pan, break chocolate into 1 ounce or ½ ounce pieces and place on a square of waxed paper. Place in top compartment of the double boiler over hot, not boiling, water. Cover the pan to hasten melting. When melted, carefully lift out the waxed paper and scrape the chocolate off with a spatula. Or use this method: Rub the bottom of the pan with butter or margarine, then add the chocolate and melt it over hot water. Chocolate needn't be grated or shaved to melt it successfully.

A new and simplified mixing method has been welcomed by cake bakers who find the traditional method of "creaming butter or shortening until soft, then adding sugar gradually and beating until light and fluffy" requires too much time and energy. This simplified method of combining all of the dry ingredients, adding shortening, then adding liquids and mixing, eliminates the creaming of shortening with sugar and the separate beating of the eggs. This method can be used in making any cake which calls for a generous amount of sugar. Two other ingredients are essential in producing a tender, fluffy cake—a very fine cake flour and a high grade hydrogenated vegetable shortening.

The shortage of paper bags, cardboard cartons, and other wrapping materials will probably become increasingly critical in the months ahead because thousands of tons of paper pulp are going into cartons needed to ship supplies to our fighting forces. Homemakers can help by taking shopping bags with them to market to avoid wrapping of individual items. It's patriotic to carry packaged foods home as they are, without asking the grocer to wrap them.

Turn in waste fats for points and pennies.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Lt. Nell Breeden, senior Illinois WAC recruiting officer, has announced that thousands of job opportunities of more than 100 types are open in the women's army corps. Billets are available, after basic training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., in the air force, the signal corps, and the medical corps.

The WAC needs meteorologists, radio operators, weather observers, air field control tower operators, mechanics, and office workers to serve with the air forces. The signal corps has openings for tabulating machine operators, cryptographic clerks, cryptanalysts, and key punch operators. Women who are expert touch system typists, or who have knowledge of foreign languages, probably will be assigned directly to jobs without additional instruction after completing basic training. Advanced schooling in mathematics also will be an asset for several signal corps assignments.

The medical corps is calling for WACs to work as pharmacists, pharmacists' aids, optometrists, psychiatric social workers, orthopedic, X-ray, medical and dental laboratory technicians, lip reading instructors, hearing aid technicians, Braille and typewriting teachers, and occupational therapists.

To ensure assignment to these jobs in the WAC, it is necessary, in many instances, for applicants to have had college training or extensive experience. In several fields, women with special qualifications will be accepted and will then receive additional army training. Each of the classifications has its own requirements. No generalized requirements can be listed.

The medical billets are regarded as exceptionally important in institutions in which the rehabilitation of incapacitated soldiers will be carried on.

Competent artists also are needed in the WAC, Lt. Breeden said. They will work as cartographers and camouflage artists and will design and produce charts and posters used by army personnel.

Most of the women enlisting for these jobs will receive noncommissioned officer ratings as soon as they have completed basic training and have been assigned to posts.

Lt. Breeden says that the Memorial day holiday will afford an opportunity for busy women to visit the recruiting office to discuss WAC billets. Recruiting headquarters in room A-333, 175 W. Jackson blvd., will be open all day tomorrow.

Allied headquarters in Algiers sends word of WAC 1st Lt. Louise M. Winslow, who lived in Chicago for some time. She now is commanding officer of a WAC company in the African city, after having been executive officer for several months of a company stationed in Italy.

Lt. Winslow's present unit consists of clerical and specialized workers, with the majority assigned to the postal directory, in which they get letters thru to the front line soldiers.

WAC Winslow, whose home is in Birmingham, Mich., is the daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Earl Otterman, who live in Lodoga, Ind. As as civilian, she was a dietitian for several large corporations, and also did personnel work for stores in the middle west.

Presbyterian Guests Heard in City Pulpits

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Commissioners to the 156th general assembly of the Presbyterian church, in session at the Stevens hotel, occupied pulpits of Presbyterian churches of city and suburbs yesterday morning. Dr. Roy Ewing Vale of Indianapolis, Ind., new moderator of the assembly, preached at Fourth Presbyterian church.

Presbyterian ministers occupied two notable Episcopal pulpits. Dr. Charles T. Leber of New York was guest preacher at St. Chrysostom's church, 1424 Dearborn pkwy., and Dr. Morgan P. Noyes, at St. James church, Wabash av. and Huron st. Dr. Henry Sloan Coffin of New York, retiring moderator, preached last night for the season's closing service at Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall.

At an interracial rally yesterday afternoon at Fourth Presbyterian church, the Rev. Dr. G. Lake Imes asserted that the American home had degenerated into a "quick change emporium, a receiving center for mail and telephone calls, a sleeping place, and a refuge from exhaustion." He said that industry and education had moved out of the home, thus threatening its integrity. He explained that the same forces that brought war had reduced education to a norm with moral and religious elements sterilized.

Of this standardization, Dr. Imes said: "Courses of study, faculty personnel, salaries, and equipment were reduced to a norm; if an institution did not conform to this, it was considered outside the pale.

"A direct consequence of the process has been the increasing secularization of education, and a further result is that character and conduct, primary concerns of religion, almost have been eliminated from the objectives of education. Credits and degrees have assumed major importance, with minimum standards of behavior stopping only short of scandal."

Dr. Imes said that commercialized recreation had supplanted the front and back yards with their parental oversight, and that even the family table had given way to the lunch counter. The final thrust toward complete breakdown of the integrity of the home, he said, was the calling of women into industry. Altho this began as an emergency war measure, he said, it already "is being encouraged as a permanent feature of our social pattern."

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

The sad fact that partners cannot always be trusted does not begin to justify the sort of unilateral action taken by South in the following deal.

East, dealer.

NORTH
♥ 7 4
♦ A K 6 2

WEST
♠ A 7 6 4
♥ A J 8 3
♦ 9 5 3
♣ A 7

EAST
♠ 10 9 8 5
♥ 9 2
♦ Q J 10

SOUTH
♠ 2
♥ K Q 10 6 5
♦ 8 7 4
♣ 10 9 8 2

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 spades	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	4 hearts	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the ace and seven of clubs, and declarer ended up by losing three clubs, three trumps and one spade, for an 1,100 point penalty.

This was a rather severe defeat in itself, but North-South's loss was augmented by the 500 points they should have collected against the doubled three spade contract. The total of 1,600 points was the price South made his side pay for his lack of faith in North's judgment. Obviously, South was so impressed by the opponents' bidding—notably by East's overenthusiastic double raise—that he thought his partner "might have stepped into a trap" and he took it upon himself to correct partner's supposed error.

Needless to say, North was entirely blameless. He had correctly surmised, from the moment he heard the opening spade bid, that his own side could not "go anywhere," and he therefore had remained discreetly silent until the opponents had neatly hanged themselves. How could he foresee that his own partner would take the rope from around their necks?

Yes, It's Proper to Write That Boy in Uniform

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

When a high school Jackson turns G. I. Joe for the duration, he leaves his school fun—the dances, basketball games, Friday night dates, and the old crowd—far behind him, but more than ever he wants to keep in touch with what's going on back home. What he can no longer do himself, he at least likes to hear about. It takes more than a Harry James' recording to help him conjure up morale boosting memories of the good times he used to have and the people he used to know. He'd like to have a running, day by day account of what his friends are doing, and, next to buying war bonds and keeping your fingers crossed, there's nothing better you can do for your particular Joe's G. I. happiness than to write him often. A letter a day keeps the blues away and a letter a week is a good average, too, if you make it a long one.

Here's a note from a puzzled honeychile whose good friend is going into service soon. She'd like to write to him, but—— Her plaint goes this way:

"I am very fond of a boy, 17, who is the son of friends of my parents. I see him occasionally, when we visit his parents or they visit us. I have known him for years and he is always very nice to me. We have fun together and it seems as tho he likes me. I have never said anything to anyone about my feelings and treat him just as he treats me. Now he is going into the marines in June or July and I would like to keep up a correspondence with him [merely casual] but I feel as tho I would be forcing myself on him. . . ."

Because your families have been such good friends for so long, a letter from you will be as welcome as a letter from home. If you want to show him you are a sincere friend, now is the time to do it. Don't worry—he'll be glad to hear from you.

Boy's Mother Praises Work of the Scouts

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If your son is inclined to spend hours on end reading; if your daughter doesn't have any companionship and doesn't seem interested in it; if your older children seem aimless and bored; if they devote themselves too much to the radio, you can be sure they need other ways of filling their leisure and giving their life a better balance.

Should some of those "ifs" apply in your family and you've not yet found a solution, you may be interested in the following enthusiastic letter:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I just read your column concerning a mother who is worried about her son being a book-worm, losing himself only in adventure stories and comic books. May I suggest that she have him join the Boy Scouts of America? No matter what his hobby may be, he can fit into this wonderful organization. To me a 'boy' means a Scout.

"I couldn't wait until my son was old enough to become one. When he was 9 we discovered the Cub Scouts, affiliated with the Scouts, for boys of 9, 10, and 11. They have blue and gold uniforms. My son will be 12 in a few weeks, and he will be a Scout, something I've dreamed of for 12 years.

"I am a 'den' mother in charge of a group of Cubs, and I know that this work does answer the problems of many, many parents and helps the boys to find themselves. The pay we leaders receive is only that the boy becomes a good Scout. That is pay enough. The Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls are wonderful for the girls. I do wish more parents would turn to these organizations. They are so beneficial for our children."

Altho this letter is meant to be a signpost for mothers about their children, I can't resist pointing out that the Boy Scout and Girl Scout organizations are greatly in need of leaders. Here is a fine contribution to the war on the home front that some men and women might make.

HOW DICTATOR ARMED BY U. S. HALTED REVOLT

Lend-Lease Tanks Given Salvador Despot.

'Threatens to Quit'

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, May 28 (AP).—Travelers arriving today from El Salvador said the new president, Andres Menendez, had threatened to resign during a crisis May 23 "unless certain military elements stop meddling in politics." With the support of the civilian population, these reports said, Menendez managed to heal the breach with the military, which had been holding secret meetings with the idea of taking control of the provisional government.

[This is the ninth article in a series by a Tribune reporter who has just returned from a tour of Latin America.]

BY STANLEY JOHNSTON.

A dictator who had been provided with six American tanks and 5,000 Springfield rifles by the United States thru lend-lease last month smashed a revolt in the tiny "republic" of El Salvador. But his superior weapons gained him only a temporary triumph, for his bloody victory and vengeful executions so aroused the people they went on a general strike that ended only when he resigned May 9.

For more than 13 years the dictator, President Maximiliano Hernandez Martinez, had been absolute ruler in that smallest and most densely populated Central American state. But when he found he could not stem the tide of long repressed public dissent with either decrees or bullets he turned over his presidential powers to Gen. Andres Ignacio Menendez, minister of national defense, and fled the country.

Amnesty Pledged to All.

The new president immediately promised amnesty to all who participated in the abortive April 2 revolt, freedom of speech and press, and elections for a constitutional assembly. Hopeful that the promises will be kept, Salvadorans ended the disruption.

The April uprising which spearheaded the change in power was not just another Latin American revolution. The sanguinary and spectacular fighting was a move for freedom by a democratic people.

Salvadorans were trying to rid themselves of a dictator who had ignored their constitution and oppressed them for years—a dictator whose military regime was recognized by the New Deal altho a previous American administration had refused to do so.

Not Needed for Defense.

When this correspondent was in El Salvador several weeks before the revolt, persons there asked why the United States supported Salvador's despot when President Roosevelt was claiming to be waging war against dictators. Explaining the basis for this contention, they told of the tanks that arrived from the United States last fall and the rifles that came earlier.

The suggestion that these arms might have been intended to provide defense against the Japanese was met with the scoffing question: "With the Japs themselves on the defensive against the powerful United States navy, is any one foolish enough to fear Japanese invasion of El Salvador?"

Certainly it will be difficult, for a time at least, to convince Salvadorans, despite our vast Latin American spending, that Washington, D. C., did not intend to help Martinez.

"Perhaps it was just another thoughtless blunder to give tanks to a dictator so hated by his people," observed a prominent Salvadoran. "Nevertheless, it was a major diplomatic error."

Sen. Hugh Butler of Nebraska, reporting to congress on a recent tour he made of Latin America, discussed the effect of our donation of military equipment to those countries.

Arms an Aid to Dictators.

"Surely no one seriously believes any longer that there is any danger they will be attacked by Germany or Japan," he said. "Historically, the chief function of Latin American armies has been to maintain in power whatever government happened to be in power at the moment.

"The effect of our policy of lend-leasing military weapons, therefore, whether we like it or not, must be to keep in power the governments that are already in power, be they good or bad."

Salvadorans were the more perplexed over Washington's apparent friendship for Martinez in view of his leanings toward the axis. They recalled that he was the first chief executive in the western hemisphere to recognize Japan's puppet government in Manchukuo and that he was the first Latin American to recognize the Spanish regime of Fascist Franco after Franco won his civil war with the help of Hitler and Mussolini.

They also recalled that when Martinez established a central banking organization in El Salvador in 1935 he imported financiers from Germany, whose first act was to order discontinued the payment of interest on bonds held by United States investors. The United States money had been obtained to build roads and pave the streets of San Salvador, the capital.

Insist He Is Pro-Nazi.

Salvadorans said Martinez's move in joining other Pan-American countries in breaking with the axis in 1942 did not contradict their belief that he is pro-Nazi. They asked: What else could he have done in view of El Salvador's entire economy being dependent upon selling coffee, and the United States the only available buyer as well as the only country from whom he could obtain essential supplies?

The entire history of Martinez's regime shows him to be a ruthless martinet. He suspended the constitution to succeed himself repeatedly and killed and imprisoned thousands of his countrymen to maintain himself in power.

To prevent these crimes of state Salvadoran statesmen had framed their constitution to prohibit a president from succeeding himself. But that law has meant nothing to their dictator.

Ousted Elected President.

Gen. Martinez rose to power in December, 1931. As head of the army he led a revolt against the government, kicked out the elected president, Arturo Aranjo, and grabbed the high post for himself. He previously had been vice president and minister of war.

The following month the people rose against him in a bloody insurrection which he quelled. Informed persons say 750 to 2,000 were killed, that bodies were piled up and burned.

Martinez charged that the rebels were "communist hordes," but prominent Salvadorans insist there are fewer than a hundred Communists in all Salvador.

Recognized by New Deal.

At that time the United States was a guarantor of a Central American treaty in which five states—El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, and Costa Rica—agreed not to recognize any army junta that overthrew a duly elected administration. Consequently, the United States refused then to recognize Martinez's rule. But after the New Deal came to power in this country, and the five states denounced the treaty, the United States in 1934 recognized the El Salvador government.

In 1935, when Martinez had been "president" for four years and, under the constitution, should have stepped down, he contended his first term didn't count because he had served in the place of his predecessor. Instead of holding a popular election he had himself "elected" to another term by the constitutional assembly, a previously elective body which he had packed with his appointees.

In 1939 he again circumvented the constitution's four year limitation on his office by having his assembly suspend the constitution, declare the country in a state of siege, and extend his term as chief executive. The better element of his cabinet resigned in protest.

As the time neared for the expiration of this term and Martinez showed no indication of relinquishing his dictatorship, growing unrest among the people foretold the revolt that was to come.

Last Dec. 8 Salvadorans marched thru the streets of their capital carrying a huge photograph of President Roosevelt and banners bearing the Atlantic Charter's promises of the "four freedoms" for the world. Martinez's loyal police promptly broke up the demonstration and took some of the marchers off to jail.

A few days later several hundred prominent Salvadorans signed a petition to the Supreme court asking for the return of their constitutional rights—public elections and free assemblage. The court refused the request, but Martinez made use of the list of names.

The 140 arrested signers of the petition were still being held incommunicado when Martinez on Jan. 25 called a special meeting of his constitutional assembly and had his term extended. Salvadorans immediately began preparing for revolt.

One of Martinez's first moves in the emergency was to execute many of his political prisoners.

For two days a bloody battle raged in San Salvador. Overpowered by superior weapons and more efficiently organized forces, the insurgents were routed.

Then the firing squads went to work.

GAMBLING BOMB MAY START NEW INQUIRY BY JURY

Police yesterday pushed their investigation into the bombing Saturday night of a gambling house at 3409 N. Paulina st., as the possibility of a grand jury investigation developed.

The owner of the building, Mrs. Olivia Magazine, whose husband operates a tavern at 1124 Argyle st., told Capt. Herbert Burns of the N. C. K. writes: "On March 9, I was reclassified to 1-A. March 12 I asked to have my case reopened; this was done and I was again classed 1-A on March 23. On March 31 I took an appeal down to my local board after signifying to them I wished to appeal, and the appeal was put in my file pending the outcome of my pre-induction physical. To date, however, I have not been for my physical. Maj. Gen. Hershey's latest directives on the drafting of men over 26 [I'm 28] are, as far as I can tell, 'new facts.' Couldn't my local board reopen my case now?"

ANSWER: Your local board could reopen your case at any time it feels there is a change of status affecting your classification or "new facts" which might affect your classification. Your board might feel that under your particular circumstances, the changed regulations would not affect your classification. You may not, for example, qualify as a "necessary man" or a "key man," hence the new regulations would not apply. The changed regulations do not change the basis of occupational deferments—they merely change to a limited degree the sequence of calling men for service.

O. L. F. asks: "Does one necessarily have to file for a whole homestead just to have a place to put a house?"

ANSWER: No, if you want only enough land to put a house on, you file for a homesite, not a homestead.

R. H. writes: "I was discharged from the army Jan. 21 on a sect. II. C. D. D. What would happen to my rights to disability compensation if I join the merchant marine or the army transport service?"

ANSWER: Service in the maritime service or in the army transport service would not affect your eligibility for compensation as a result of your army service as long as you have a service-connected disability. If your disability is nonservice connected, you are limited to earning something in the neighborhood of $1,000 annually before your compensation is cut.

M. V. R. writes: "I have been honorably discharged from the army and still retain my national service life insurance under the original five year term policy. What will be done with the insurance when the present five year term ends in 1945? Is it advisable to convert now or wait until the term expires? I am 38 years old now and I'm afraid it will cost me too much if I convert all this insurance."

ANSWER: Probably the best thing you can do is to convert as much of the policy as you can conveniently pay the premium on for the time being, the balance of the policy may be carried on the five year contract and, if at the end of the contract you cannot afford to convert it, you can drop it. The five year policy does not accumulate a cash surrender or loan value and, too, if you wait to convert it to one of the other plans until just before the contract terminates, your rate will be even higher per thousand of insurance because of your advanced age. Veterans' administration insurance form 358 is used in applying for conversion and it is available from the nearest veterans' administration facility or from this department if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is sent to us.

CUBS AND WHITE SOX LOSE DOUBLE HEADERS

BRAVES DEFEAT NORTH SIDERS, 7 TO 3 AND 7 TO 4

Winning Streak Halted at Seven.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 28.—The Cubs' beautiful picture entitled seven victories in a row was removed from the baseball art gallery this afternoon by the local Braves, who weren't at all gentle in their work. They suddenly tired of serving as cousins to the P. K. Wrigley colors and took a double header, 7 to 3 and 7 to 4, before 15,228 customers.

The whole thing probably is best explained by a tail wind and the Braves' discovery that an extra base hit gets speedier and better results. In the first game they touched up Claude Passeau, Bill Fleming and Dale Alderson for 10 hits of which three were homers, three were doubles and one a triple. They slowed down a little in the second affair against Hy Vandenberg and Paul Erickson by confining themselves to eight hits, but one was a homer, two were triples and two were doubles.

Cubs Get Eight Hits.

If you make allowances for the two gentlemen who started in charge of the Braves' pitching, Jim Tobin and Al Javery, the outcome shouldn't be much of a shock. The Cubs did quite well against Tobin, all things considered, by getting eight hits. One of them was Phil Cavarretta's second homer of the year and another the No. 4 nonstop flight for Bill Nicholson. Cavarretta's tap handed Passeau a lead which lasted until the third, and Nicholson's effort came too late even tho it produced two runs in the seventh.

The Cubs twice produced a one run edge for Vandenberg early in the second game and the graduate Brewer remained a sturdy opponent for the Braves until the sixth. At this stage he was slapped around for two runs, one of them a homer by Tommy Holmes. Pinch batters nudged him out of the show in the eighth when the Cubs made a two run attack, half of which was a homer by Dom Dallessandro.

Andrews Relieves Javery.

Nate Andrews relieved Javery before a tie could be reached, whereupon the Braves eased themselves with a two run eighth inning blast against Erickson.

Cavarretta's homer in the first inning launched the action in the opening game and this slim lead against Tobin held up until Passeau encountered the unexpected flurry of hits in the third. He asked for it by walking Wietelmann to start the inning. After Tobin had been erased on a fly ball Ryan sailed his homer over the shortened right field barrier for a 2 to 1 Brave lead. A moment later Macon tripled and Holmes singled and that made it 3 to 1.

Home Run Greets Fleming.

When Fleming came into the show in the sixth, the first to face him was Nieman who uncorked his homer over the abbreviated right field screen. This 4 to 1 score wasn't disturbed until the Cubs' seventh when Goodman survived on a fumble by Macon and Nicholson banged his homer well back into the original right field seats.

Apparently the Braves were uncomfortable about this. They padded their edge with a run on Johnson's error and a double by Macon in the home half. Then they made everything secure with the pair off Alderson in the eighth. This was done on Nieman's second homer and doubles by Phillips and Masi.

The Cubs started the second match much as they had done in the first. That is to say they scored a run off Javery on a single by Schuster and double by Cavarretta. This slight edge was of brief duration. Ryan beat out a bunt to open the Braves' first half, stole second without delay and strolled to third while Johnson was fumbling Macon's roller. Ryan scored on Holmes' force of Macon.

Cavarretta Doubles Again.

Grimm's boys took over another one run lead in the third. Cavarretta doubled again and scored on a single by Dallessandro after Nicholson had been purposely passed. The Braves required only one hit to tie

BY ARCH WARD.

HARRY STUHLDREHER of Wisconsin thinks the National Football league made a mistake in its recent change on out of bounds kick-off penalties. . . . You will recall that the professionals at their meeting in Philadelphia a month ago adopted a proposal by Curly Lambeau of Green Bay which provides that if a kick-off goes out of bounds the kicking team must try again from its 35 yard line. . . . If the second kick-off sails over the sidelines, the ball is brought back to the 30 yard line for a third try. . . . That process is repeated until there is a fair kick-off. . . . Stuhldreher says that in professional football, where scoring usually is high, eight or 10 minutes easily could be added to the time required to complete a game. . . . The Wisconsin leader is against intentional out of bounds kick-offs and would penalize the offending team by giving the ball to the other squad at midfield. . . . He is opposed to the restoration of the tee on the kick-off for the same reason it was eliminated from the college code. . . . Kickoffs from a tee unquestionably travel higher and farther, but they resulted in pile-ups that produced too many injuries, he contends. . . . One of the finest publications for service men to come to the attention of this department is Northwestern university's Wildcat News, edited by Walter Paulison. . . . The monthly journal, now in its second year, is sent to 1,000 former Wildcat athletes and is rated by boys on a par with a letter from home. . . . Tom Yawkey, who usually accompanies the Red Sox on all trips, didn't start on the current western jaunt, but reservations are being made for him at every stop.

Glenn Dobbs.

Some players are scoffing at Buck Newsom's promise to pitch three games for the Athletics in the 1944 world series. . . . The White Sox can't laugh much, for the windy pitcher stood them on their heads in a night game in Philadelphia. . . . Count Fleet has added 150 pounds since winning the Belmont stakes last year. . . . There are 15 women mutuel clerks at Detroit's Fairgrounds. . . . University of Chicago, which has dropped all sports competition, has had at least a share of 20 of the 34 Big Ten tennis championships. . . . Calumet farm's Twilight Tear is a standout among the 3 year old fillies, but they cannot give her the award until her stablemate, Miss Keeneland, and Leslie Combs' Durazna meet her at Washington Park. . . . Greatest pitcher he ever handled? Lt. Comdr. Mickey Cochrane says Lefty Grove without hesitating. . . . A recent storm in New Orleans blew down part of the center field fence at the ball park. . . . The Chicago Cardinals expect to have two players from Tulsa university, whose teams have appeared in two of the last three Sugar bowl games, by the time summer training arrives. . . . They are Bobby Dobbs, brother of Glenn, who was a headliner in last year's All-Star game, and End Saxon Judd. . . . The latter is about to receive a medical discharge from the marines.

A Day of Remembrance.

With thoughtful hearts we dedicate this day
To those brave boys of ours who went their way,
And will not come again. It seems not long
Since on their lips we heard gay bits of song
And boyish jest, while in a lightsome mood
They sipped youth's brimming cup and found it good.
Then war's dark shadow fell, and one by one
They slipped away. And now their task is done.
So soon it has been theirs to meet the test
That took their all. Untroubled is their rest,
On native soil or on some far off shore
Where still o'erhead the sullen cannon roar.
They played their part in war without acclaim.
The blessings we esteem beyond all price
Are saved for us by their great sacrifice.
On memory's walls the likenesses are hung,

MICHIGAN WINS TEAM TITLE IN BIG TEN TENNIS

Ohio State Second by One Point.

Michigan won its third Big Ten championship in two days by taking the Western conference tennis crown on the Northwestern university courts in Evanston yesterday with 18 points. On Saturday, the Wolverines won the outdoor track and golf titles to run their list of championships to seven for the year.

The Maize and Blue racquet wielders were forced to come from behind to triumph. Trailing Ohio State, 13 to 11, at the end of Saturday's play, the Wolverines proved their caliber by winning three of the six singles divisions and one of the three doubles divisions in yesterday's finals.

Ohio Second by One Point.

Ohio State, which had sent five players into the singles finals, took only two singles titles while winning one doubles final. As a result the Buckeyes finished in second place with 17 points. Northwestern was third with 10 points. The other team scores were: Chicago and Purdue, five each; Wisconsin, four; Minnesota, and Illinois, one each.

The individual singles title was won by Ted Park of Wisconsin, who defeated Walter Lum of Purdue in the No. 1 singles division in an extra-set match, 7-5, 5-7, 6-3.

Father Is Tennis Coach.

Park, a graduate student who played three years at Central Michigan college where his father is tennis coach, was a bit too steady for the Hawaiian born Lum, who eliminated Harrie Hall of Northwestern, No. 2 seeded player, in the first day's play.

The championship singles match proved to be a see-saw affair with both players coming from behind on frequent occasions to stave off defeat.

SINGLES FINALS.

Prep Nines Seek State Meet Berths

Chicago Public High School league baseball teams will play for sectional championships, places in the play-off for the league title, and an opportunity to play in the Illinois State tournament finals in Peoria in games this week.

Two teams will represent Chicago in the battling for the state championship in Peoria. As yet it has not been decided whether the choice of Chicago's representatives will be made by the league's board of control of its regular baseball committee, but a decision in this matter probably will be made today.

Chicago never before has been represented in the competition for the state title.

The teams still in the running are Amundsen, Lane and Von Steuben in the north section; Marshall and Crane in the west section; Hyde Park, Fenger, and Calumet in the south section, and Lindblom, Farragut, and Kelly in the central section.

Coaches Hear Rosy Report on '44 Football

New York, May 28 (AP).—Optimism was the keynote today as 50 officers and trustees of the National Football Coaches association began a two day meeting that is expected to develop verbal fireworks over various rules tomorrow. There has been agitation that teams kicking off out of bounds be penalized and required to kick over.

Southeast Comes Back.

The enthusiasm today was generated by seven speakers who told their fellow coaches of the sport's return to 11 colleges whose teams were dormant last season. Only Princeton, among the major schools, has dropped football since the close of the 1943 campaign.

Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech coach, said that the Southeast conference, which struggled along as a four club organization last fall, will have 11 teams in action this season, with Vanderbilt, the 12th peace time member, sponsoring an informal eleven.

Honor Two Commanders.

Carl Snavely, Cornell coach, reported that Syracuse likely will field a team this fall. Harry Stuhldreher of Wisconsin mentioned Michigan State as the returning midwest member and West Texas State as rejoining the fold in the southwest.

Commanders Tom Hamilton and Frank Wickhorst of the navy's Preflight program were voted honorary memberships in the organization, and Charles Bachman of Michigan State was named chairman of a committee to study the advisability of creating a permanent public relations office.

BOSTON AGAIN DROPS CHICAGO INTO 8TH PLACE

7 Errors Contribute to 6-4, 4-2 Losses.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Boston Red Sox, who dumped the White Sox into the American league cellar by thrashing them in a double header in Boston on Sunday, May 21, jolted them twice more in Comiskey park yesterday to toss them into the pit again. The scores of yesterday's reversals were 6 to 4 in the first game, and 4 to 2 in the second. A crowd of 24,720 witnessed the sad flounderings.

The Red Sox, winners of 17 games this season, have acquired six of that total in pushing over the White Sox in exactly that many tries. As usual, they outsmarted our lads while giving them the business. It may be said however, that the Chicagoans' play under beautifully clear skies ranged from brilliant to strictly humpty dumpty.

Jake Wade to the Rescue!

The White Sox losses gave them a record of seven setbacks in their last eight games, but it was announced between games that whistling Jake Wade had just been rushed in from Moorehead City, N. C., and probably will be signed today. However, Wade is left handed and thus not likely to give a rest to Skeeter Webb, Sox shortstop, who yesterday extended his nonhitting streak to 21 times at bat.

In the first game the Red Sox took advantage of 10 hits and nine bases on balls off Ed Lopat, four White Sox errors and several cases of Chicago brain fag. Old Joe Bowman, a National leaguer of some years back, went all the way for his second victory over the Sox, his third of the season. He yielded 10 hits but it took three hits for the White Sox to score their first run, two for their second, and three for their third. Oddly enough, it took none to produce the fourth, but the Sox were thoroly whipped by that time.

More Woe for Lefty Lee.

In the second game, Thornton Lee suffered his sixth straight defeat against no victories. Clem Hausmann rang up his first success of the year for Boston.

Lee tried to overcome the White Sox talent for making no runs when he pitches by driving in one run with a single and putting the other scorer in scoring position. This happened in the second inning and gave the Chicago Sox a 2 to 0 lead. It was more or less Lee's fault, however, that this lead was wiped out and doubled by the Red Sox. The White Sox, however, added three errors in the second game to bring their misplay total for the afternoon to a miserable seven.

Schalk Gets Five Hits.

While most of the White Sox showed their customary meekness when armed with bats, a few gave good performances on offense. Leroy Schalk had five hits and three passes. Wally Moses knocked a double and a single in the first game and a single in the second game. The double was the only extra base hit by the Chicagoans in their last four games.

The teams will play tonight and Buck Ross will pitch for the tailenders. Tex Hughson has been nominated by the Red Sox.

Dykes Scorns the Sacrifice.

The White Sox scored the tying run in the third, which Tom Turner opened with a single to left. He stopped at second on Lopat's single to left. Manager Jim Dykes, eager to show the big crowd a burst of power, chose to forego the sacrifice. So Moses flied to Culberson. Second guessing was rampant when Schalk came thru with the single which would have put Chicago ahead under orthodox procedure. As played, only Turner scored. Schalk was thrown out trying to reach second, and Ralph Hodgin flied out.

Doerr was on third after his walk and two infield outs in the fourth when Myril Hoag interfered on Hodgin on Skeeter Newsome's high fly. It fell for a spurious double and gave Boston a 2 to 1 lead. Moses' double and Schalk's

WPB INCREASES COTTON TEXTILE EXPORT QUOTAS

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP).—The war production board today announced an increase in the yardage of cotton textiles to be sent abroad. Officials said the export quotas, amounting to about one-twelfth of United States cotton fabric output, would intensify the squeeze on civilian cotton supplies in the first half of this year.

The amount allocated for export in the first six months of 1944 is 433 million yards, WPB said, or about 8¾ per cent of the estimated United States production. A larger proportion will be expected in the second half, officials predicted.

WPB said it had made every effort to exclude from the export quotas any fabrics which are more urgently needed in this country.

100TH BIRTHDAY OF Y.M.C.A. WILL BE CELEBRATED

Chicago joins with the rest of the world in celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Young Men's Christian association in the week of June 4 to 10. More than 100,000 members and friends will participate in phases of the program planned for Centennial week.

Gov. Green has urged the people of Illinois to give the occasion appropriate recognition.

Since June 6, 1844, when the "Y" was organized in London by 12 young men, the organization has grown to its present size of five million members. It is now the largest and oldest agency in the world working for the welfare of youth.

"Because Chicago has the largest city association in the world, there is a special interest in the centennial," said Carroll H. Sudler, chairman of the committee. "The Chicago association was founded in 1858."

June 6 will be Second Century day and special programs will be held by various "Y" departments in the city.

QUINTS 10 YEARS OLD; GET NEW FROCKS AND DAD'S SURPRISE PONY

CALLANDER, Ont., May 28 (AP).—The Dionne quintuplets were 10 years old today and they received a gift for which they had been clamoring for more than a year—a pony.

Oliva Dionne, their father and guardian, decided they were at last old enough for one, but kept the gift a secret until it was presented to Yvonne, Annette, Emilie, Cecile, and Marie today.

Their birthday was celebrated elaborately, but it was a family affair with the 14 Dionnes—the quints, their parents, four brothers, and three sisters—their teachers and household staff participating.

After mass in their chapel and a luncheon, the family gathered in the recreation room of their $50,000, 20 room home. The quints had on frocks especially designed for the occasion, red for Annette, blue for Marie, pink for Yvonne, green for Cecile, and white for Emilie.

AVIATION MART OPEN JUNE 5 AS SALES CENTER

Curtiss-Wright Is First to Enter.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Establishment of the American Aviation Mart—to open June 5 in the American Furniture Mart at 666 Lake Shore dr.—was announced yesterday by Col. Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the furniture institution. The mart's first assignment will be the sale of equipment and materials no longer needed by the aviation industry because of changes in design and methods.

Curtiss-Wright corporation, one of the country's largest aviation manufacturers, is the first aviation company to enter the mart, but other major companies are expected to join later.

National Sales Center Planned.

Altho the first objective will be to help dispose of aviation items no longer needed, the long range plan is to act as a central location where the aviation industry may go to buy parts and supplies, Whiting said. It is hoped the mart may be the national center for sale and distribution of planes just as the furniture mart has been a national center for the furniture industry.

Accomplishment of these objectives, Whiting said, would help greatly in efforts to make Chicago the country's aviation center.

Of the new enterprise, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, said:

"The prompt disposal of war materials and war plant equipment as we approach the end of the war is a task of great national importance. The establishment here of such an important agency as the American Aviation Mart for disposal of certain surplus stocks is another recognition of Chicago's position as the prime distribution center.

Use Chicago as Supply Source.

"It is also another step in the tendency the greater aircraft companies are beginning to show in figuring Chicago as a principal source for their raw materials and parts and vice versa for a broadening of their contacts with potential consumers of their own wares."

The aviation mart will open on the 17th floor. J. C. Evans, Curtiss-Wright executive who helped to complete arrangements, said that samples of the many items to be sold will be displayed so that manufacturers may easily find goods they require. Goods sold from mart samples will be shipped from storage centers elsewhere.

Among the many types of items that will be shown are: steel, brass, bronze and copper items of various types; aluminum; rivets; hardware; electrical equipment; tools and abrasives and a miscellaneous collection including paint, oil, dope felts, cloth, welding rods, tape, asbestos, leather and rubber.

Would Reduce Inventories.

Evans said that the constantly changing designs of airplanes and improvements and changes in manufacturing methods produce large stocks of materials and equipment that can no longer be used. Curtiss-Wright, as well as other aviation companies, wants to dispose of such stores in order to reduce post-war inventories.

Purchases may be made by any type of manufacturer, but all purchases are subject to approval by governmental agencies including the army, navy and war production board. The various items will be sold in small lots, but not under $500 in values so the small manufacturer will have an opportunity to get materials.

Streamliner Hiawatha Ends Ninth Year Today

The Milwaukee railroad's streamlined train, the afternoon Hiawatha, will complete its ninth year of operation today with a total of 3,275,000 paying passengers carried on its run between Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and Minneapolis, the company announced yesterday. The figures do not include the 1,440,000 passengers carried on the morning Hiawatha since its inception Jan. 21, 1939. Diesel-electric and streamlined oil and coal burning steam locomotives are used to haul the Hiawatha.

War Results Termed Index of Steel Needs

Cleveland, O., May 28 (AP).—Altho third quarter steel allotments have dropped, requirements for the latter half of 1944 will depend largely "on fortunes of war in western Europe," the magazine Steel said today.

"Reasonably quick success might well result in cutbacks and cancellations, but all present plans are being predicated on prospects of stubborn resistance," the publication said. "Full force of the heavy shell program should be felt early in the third quarter."

Pressure for steel deliveries is intense, Steel said, and prospects of added man power shortages are causing mills to push their tonnage.

"Combined with expanding requirements in some lines, notably shell steel and landing craft, this not only provides mills with overflow tonnage, but assures most producers all they can handle for several months," Steel said.

For some finished steel products, such as nails, demand is heavy and producers experience difficulty in obtaining sufficient steel to meet requirements. Because of military needs most wire mills are sold well into the fourth quarter and much farther on products requiring additional processing, the publication said.

Supplies of pig iron and scrap are sufficient for the high steel production rate, Steel reported.

MAN-DAY STRIKE COST IN FIRST QUARTER IS DOUBLE LAST YEAR'S

Washington, D. C., May 28 [Special].—Man hours of idleness resulting from strikes in the first quarter of this year were about twice those of the first three months last year, bureau of labor statistics figures show.

A comparison of the bureau's strike figures for the first three months of each of the three war years shows that the number of new strikes has increased progressively, not only in each year, but in each month of each year.

The number of new strikes in the first quarter of 1942 was 571. It was 643 in 1943 and 1,020 in 1944. Moreover, the progression continued thru each quarter. There were 156 new strikes in January of 1942, 181 in February, and 234 in March. In 1943 there were 195 new strikes in January, 200 in February, and 248 in March. This year there were 330 new ones each in January and February, and 360 in March, according to the BLS figures.

A similar progression was found in the number of strikers. In the first quarter of 1942 there were 154,343 workers involved in new strikes. In 1943 there were 203,998 involved. And this year 340,000 went on strike during the first three months. Man days lost were 1,089,639 in the first quarter of 1942, dropped to 748,564 in the 1943 quarter, and jumped to 1,510,000 in the first quarter of 1944.

CHICAGO PLANTS ADD 5.7 MILLION GROWTH IN MAY

Chicago's industrial plant facilities were expanded by $5,745,896 in May, bringing new expenditures to $42,550,746 in 1944, and to $1,023,445,583 since the beginning of the war production program in July, 1940, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, said yesterday. Chicago has led the nation's industrial districts in volume of war plant construction, he said.

Companies that started expansion programs in May included Chicago Die Casting Manufacturing, Industrial Equipment, W. B. Conkey, Pratt Food, Drake Electric, Central Pattern & Foundry, Reliance Pattern, Russell Electric, Bastian-Blessing, and Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing.

INTEREST WILL BE PAID.

I am the registered owner of some United States government 3¼ per cent bonds which were called for payment on April 15. I have not yet turned them in for payment, and to date have failed to receive my interest check due April 15. Several other people I know have not received their interest checks. Has our government quit paying interest on its obligations?—J. A.

Answer: When government bonds are called for redemption, interest is not paid until the bonds are turned in either in exchange for another issue or for cash.

This practice is followed in order to avoid confusion. An adjustment of interest is necessary, for example, if the holder of the called bonds accepts an exchange offer for an issue carrying a higher or lower interest rate. Some time is required to clear all the exchanges made at various federal reserve banks and branches, and the treasury department has no means of knowing immediately which registered holders have made an exchange. Consequently, final interest checks are held up to prevent errors.

The United States has never defaulted on any obligation.

AXTON-FISHER DISSOLUTION IS URGED BY BOARD

Louisville, Ky., May 28 (AP).—The management and board of directors of Axton-Fisher Tobacco company recommended to stockholders that the corporation's $17,485,612 assets be liquidated.

Jesse W. Tapp, president, reported that operating profit on sales of $21,600,000 in 1943 was only $119,696 and that preliminary figures for the first four months this year show an operating loss of $224,819 for that period. He said in the last few years stockholders have suggested dissolution, but the directors had hoped unfavorable conditions "were temporary." Discussing this he continued:

"Current market prices for tobacco are on the average more than two and one-half times what they were in 1939 and 1940, and it seems clear that with increasing cost of production and with fixed selling prices for our manufactured products the company cannot conduct its operations at a reasonable profit. There does not appear to be any prospect of improvement in the near future."

Portable Pipe Ready to Aid Invasion Army

Portable steel pipeline made by American companies will have an important role in the invasion of western Europe, the American Iron and Steel institute said yesterday. The pipe, made of light welded carbon steel, will be the "lifeline of the invasion," said the institute.

The portable lines will be used to rush oil, gasoline, and sometimes water from supply depots to the battlefront at the rate of 170,000 gallons a day each.

Can Be Laid Rapidly.

"An army no longer travels on its stomach," the institute said. "It travels by means of steel arteries, which convey the necessary fluids of mechanized warfare. Portable steel pipelines, laid at the rate of 1,000 feet per truck load, have revolutionized military transport and supply.

"When the invasion begins, myriad tenacles of American steel will flick swiftly eastward and inland from the coast. Thru their 4 to 6 inch diameters will flow the oil and other liquids that make up more than half the tonnage of all types of supplies needed for the greatest military operation in history."

Poor Bombing Target.

A petroleum pipeline requires only one-tenth the man power required for a tanker truck transport, and it carries enough fuel to free 250 trucks for other purposes. Logistics experts who observed tanker trucks consuming precious quantities of gasoline they carried over the Burma road regard the portable pipeline as a "full fledged weapon," the institute asserted. In addition, the pipeline makes such a poor bombing target that a 100 pound bomb must strike within 4 feet of the line to be effective.

"A single steel pipeline can fuel a plane direct from the tanker even when plane and ship are 1,000 miles apart," said the institute, "and it can do this over territory no truck could negotiate. In North Africa, one flexibly jointed pipeline cut across 90 miles of marshland, 12 rivers, 47 streams, and ducked under five railroads and 34 roads."

BIG UTILITY LOAN EXEMPTED FROM OPEN BIDS RULE

Philadelphia, Pa., May 28 (AP). — The securities and exchange commission today exempted from competitive bidding requirements the 100 million dollars of first mortgage collateral trust bonds to be issued by United Gas corporation in connection with its reorganization.

United's original request to issue 75 million of the bonds as a means of liquidating its $52,925,000 indebtedness to Electric Bond and Share company, was made May 5, 1941 — two days before the competitive bidding rule became effective.

Joe H. Gill, president of United Gas, testified that the present refinancing will enable 14 insurance companies who had agreed to buy the issue in 1941 to absorb a substantial portion of the 100 million issuance, but negotiations will not be limited to these companies, the SEC reported.

BUMPER CROPS LIKELY DESPITE LATE PLANTING

Altho heavy rains of the last four months have delayed the seeding of oats and barley and planting of corn, the foundation has been established for bumper crops this year, grain trade authorities said yesterday. Current prospects indicate a 700 million bushel winter wheat crop, which would be one of the largest ever harvested in this country and 170 million bushels above the 1943 crop.

Because of the more than average subsoil reserve moisture supply in the corn belt, a corn crop of well over 3 billion bushels could easily be raised with average weather conditions from now on, it was said. Some grain men said that if conditions are unusually favorable a record yield is probable. The 1943 harvest was 3 billion 76 million bushels. Farmers were unable to seed all of their intended oats acreage, and additional land will be put into corn and soybeans.

Farmers Report Progress.

Despite persistent rains last week farmers made progress in planting corn and most of the acreage is expected to be in by June 10 if weather conditions are favorable. Experts say this is not too late for corn. Last year corn planting was continued in parts of Iowa until late June and a good crop resulted.

Within 30 days new wheat and oats will be available in substantial volume in the southern parts of the country. Brokers said there was already evidence of an easing in the acute shortage in feed grains in many areas. However, no improvement is expected in the central west and northwest for at least six weeks. Wheat and oats crops will not be harvested in those areas until July.

Northwestern cash grain interests are reported to be purchasing large quantities of wheat, oats, and barley for deferred shipment from the country. However, a lower price for oats and barley than prevailing at present is expected to be announced soon by the office of price administration, and the purchases in the northwest are being made at the ceiling price that is in effect at the time and grain is delivered.

Heavy Selling in Week.

General selling was under way in the grain markets early last week, reflecting improvement in the outlook for the new crops. Extensive hedging in wheat was attributed to mills. Deliveries of large quantities of cash rye proved too much for bulls in the rye futures market and they were forced to stage a disorderly retreat from their position. July wheat at the low price was off 11 cents and July rye was down 22¾ cents from the high levels reached early this month.

Phone Demand Increases; Little Relief Expected Soon

The number of Chicago families awaiting telephone installations has continued to grow, an Illinois Bell Telephone official said yesterday. He warned no substantial relief was in sight in the Chicago area despite the war production board's recent authorization for 800,000 new civilian type telephone sets after June 1.

Delivery of the new sets, beginning in the fall, will give only slight relief to the tremendous demand. Indications are that the Pacific coast will be the first area to benefit, it was said.

Central Equipment Lacking.

Other bottlenecks include the shortage of central office equipment, both manual [switchboard] and dialing apparatus, and the heavy load already placed on cables.

Requests for telephones have come in at about 4,000 a month, few of which can be filled, the company official said. On May 1, 26,461 families were on the chronological waiting list, compared with 21,982 on April 1, and 18,289 on March 1.

Some Areas Unserviced.

Of those waiting, 10,701 can't get telephones because of lack of other equipment in their areas. Another 1,491 families are in areas where cables are loaded to capacity. They cannot be serviced until there is a "disconnect" in their area, and afterward they must wait their turn on the list.

The number of phones currently operating in Chicago total 1,152,930, compared with 1,153,184 two months earlier. The slight decrease represents "disconnects" which are currently being installed elsewhere it was explained.

PACKARD NET PROFIT DIPS AS OUTPUT GAINS

Packard Motor Car company in the first quarter of 1944 shipped 79 per cent more war engines than last year, but dollar billings increased only 31 per cent and profit declined 9 per cent, George T. Christopher, president, reported yesterday. Production was concentrated on marine and Rolls-Royce aircraft engines.

Sales totaled $113,934,499, compared with $86,798,862. Billings currently have reached 1½ million dollars a day and will increase further, Christopher said.

Taxes Top Five Millions.

First quarter profit was $1,085,989, after provision of $5,291,000 for federal income taxes, equal to 81 per cent of earnings before taxes. In the 1942 period the profit was $1,193,871 and provision for income taxes $5,540,155.

Voluntary price reductions on some contracts and a lower percentage fee on others accounted for the decrease in profit. Christopher explained. He said that since the start of war production Packard has completed more than 665 million dollars of war goods and that business on the books still exceeds 1 billion.

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP).—Faced with depleted reserves of live stock feed, the war food administration is pointing 1945 farm production goals toward a sharp reduction in hogs, poultry, eggs, turkeys, and cattle.

Tentative plans provide for a continued high level of field crops, but the prospective cut in live stock would reduce total farm and food production to a level between those of 1942 and 1943.

Live stock supplies during the last three years were based on the year-to-year production of feed plus large reserves built up before the year. Those reserves have been used up and there is not enough land and man power to expand feed production to levels which would be necessary to maintain this year's live stock numbers.

Production Already Cut.

The degree of the contemplated contraction is indicated by tentative goals on hogs. The WFA now plans to ask for a 1945 spring pig crop of only 57,000,000 head compared with 62,000,000 this year and about 75,000,000 last year. The 1945 fall crop goal may be about 38,000,000 head compared with this year's revised fall crop goal of about 40,000,000 and a 1943 fall crop of about 55,000,000.

Preliminary plans call for a reduction of from 10 to 15 per cent in chickens and eggs.

The WFA now expects, however, to ask farmers to maintain production of most crops at this year's level. The 1945 milk goal likewise will be kept at the 1944 figure.

Anticipate Need for Cotton.

It is possible the cotton goal for 1945 may be increased for the first time since the war started. Farm experts expect the end of the war in Europe to bring European demand for considerable American cotton.

The tentative 1945 goals include:

Corn—About 103,000,000 acres compared with expected 102,000,000 this year.

FOOD INDUSTRY EYES PROBLEMS FOR BOTH WAR AND PEACE HERE

Problems of future war food emergencies and post-war planning will feature a three day conference of food manufacturers and processors of the United States and Canada at the 5th annual meeting of the Institute of Food Technologists that opens today in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

William V. Cruess of the University of California, president of the institute, said when he arrived for the conference that the No. 1 job of the organization still was to provide food for the army and its allies. "We must not be lulled into complacency over our war period accomplishment," he said, adding:

Maj. Gen. Stephen G. Henry, director of the new developments division of the war department, will be the keynoter this morning, with "The Food Technologist's Role in the War." Other speakers today include George A. Sloan, president of Nutrition Foundation, Inc., New York, and Rear Adm. E. G. Morsell of the 9th naval district supply corps, Great Lakes.

The public has been invited to the food exhibit of the convention. An education display has been arranged.
